Food By-Products Vary, But Promote Savings At Barley Farm

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CRESWELL (Lancaster Co.) — If you can find a food waste product that resembles corn — is consistent in terms of low moisture and has a high energy value — then you've got a cattle food source to save you money.

Barley's Star Rock Farms is an example of a farm that succeeds by feeding the right food by-products, and is one of the farms selected for a tour during the annual Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association (PCA) Field Day on Saturday, June 17.

Robert Barley, who helps manage the 1,850-head steer operation called Star Rock Farm, said, "The best food by-product is something that is high in energy and high in protein and is consistent, with low moisture.

"A lot of your waste products are high in moisture, like salad. Sometimes I get chocolate syrup, which is high in moisture and hard to handle. But your best by-product is one that is consistently dry, high in energy, and is just like corn."

Walking down the aisle in the main barn, where 750 steers are housed, Barley kicks some of the remnants of the by-products into the troughs. A pineapple head here, a slice of honeydew there, a lemon here, an open grapefruit there, in addition to carrots and other salad remnants make up a portion of the feed for cattle. Barley also makes use of noodle waste, burritos, and other pasta-type products which the cattle readily eat.

Barley, who farms 3,000 acres at Star Rock in partnership with his brother Tom and cousin Abe, Jr., purchases noodle food product waste from a local food processing company. Altogether, the food by-products make up about 10 percent of the volume of feed to the mostly Holstein steer herd and about 35 percent of the total energy intake for the herd.

The rest of the feed is corn silage and high moisture corn, and at times ryelage and high moisture barley. The corn silage is a major component of the feed, including high-moisture ground ear corn. Protein is added to the total mixed

SCC To Review Nutrient Management Advisory Board Recommendations

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The State Conservation Commission (SCC) is scheduled to meet June 21 at the Rachel Carson State Office Building in Harrisburg to review recommendations for regulations to implement the state's Nutrient Management Act.

The recommendations are a set of regulations created by the commission's 15-member Nutrient Management Advisory Board working with the commission staff.

The commission staff are also employed by the state Department of Environmental Resources and obstensibly will be involved in carrying out support of the enforcement of the regulations through the conservation districts.

On April 19, the Nutrient Management Advisory Board by a show of hands had unanimously (though not all present) approved a set of regulations to recommend to the commission.

The commission is an independent agency chaired by the state secretary of environmental resources, with the secretary of agriculture as a member.

The commission is the agency given authority to administer the Nutrient Management Act, since the law was formed with the concept that mandatory nutrient management planning would best be

Dairy Issue Next Week

The Dairy Issue, a special annual tribute to the dairy industry, comes to you from Lancaster Farming next week. We have special on-farm features and reports on farm management, dairy promotion, and messages from advertisers.

In addition, the first of the annual dairy recipes will be presented in Section B, and our livestock, grain, and auction reports, along with regular columns, will be in place.

Look for next week's special dairy issue when we feature dairy farmers and agribusinesses which help provide wholesome milk and dairy products to the urban population centers.

A pleasant spring that is somewhat cooler than normal has given local farmers a good chance to get well into spring planting. The Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service reports corn planting ahead of the five-year average. And while corn has started to emerge, the cool weather seemed to have caused sprouting to take longer than usual.

Rainfall into the week ending May 21 was reported short to mostly adequate in northern Pennsylvania, short to surplus in the central region, and short to mostly adequate in southeast Pennsylvania. In Lancaster County, tobacco planting has started, and recent rains have resulted in good pasture growth.

In the photo, Jeff and Dale Rohrer, Lititz, began planting their 150 acres of beans this week. Dale said planting was delayed a little by the rains, but the warm weather now will help germination and bring the crop on about as fast as if it were planted earlier. The Rohrers also have 150 acres of corn.

On another note for Lancaster County farmers, the deadline for Clean and Green applications was officially extended 90 days to Sept. 1. The reassessment notices had been mailed right in the middle of planting season, and many local farmers felt they did not adequately understand or have time to properly consider their options in the program. The judges in Lancaster County court agreed and gave the extension. Next year the deadline reverts back to the June 1 timetable. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

National Egg Market

ATLANTA, GA
MAY 24, 1995

Prices were generally unchanged. The market tone was steady. Demand covered the full range, and was mostly moderate. Supplies were adequate or available with the heaviest sizes occasionally difficult to secure partially due to molting and slaughtering the older birds. Breaking stock supplies were also adequate for the unaggressive demand. Live hen offerings were fully adequate for the unaggressive demand.

For additional information, please call (404) 347-4121.

TIPS TO IMPROVE EGGSHELL QUALITY...

Dr Milton Scott
Nutritionist Consultant

"Look for insults"

A transparent 'Electronic Egg' that lights on impacts that might crack or break an egg is a useful tool Run it through the entire collection and processing system to locate points that are providing more than their share of insults

Sometimes cleaning or adjustment will eliminate or alleviate a trouble spot But there will always be insults Oyster shell is extra insurance that you'll have strong eggshells to help minimize the results of insults

For details on the "Electronic Egg" and the use of oyster shells contact The Fox Co , PO Box 708 Newfield, NJ 08344 FAX 609/697-1692, Phone 800/257-7022

Delmarva Broiler

EDISON, NJ
MAY 24, 1995

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was fair to good and best on 3 pound and lighter weight sizes. Offerings were closely cleared on the smaller sizes; adequate to fully adequate on the heavier weights. Live supplies were generally moderate; weights varied, but were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules remained very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 51 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was steady to firm. In the parts complex, breast items were in closer balance but remained at least adequate. Leg items were adequate to closely cleared. Wings continued to move well at most plants.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MAY 24, 1995

Wheat bids finished mixed as rains continued to push spring wheat planting further behind. Recent gains, however, spurred profit taking in wheat pits, limiting upturns. Corn bids were slightly lower after two days of sharp advances and forecasts call for drier conditions in the Midwest for next week. Soybean bids moved higher on oil strength and export optimism. Wheat mixed, mostly 1 to 11 cents lower except Kansas City 2 cents higher. Corn 1 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 1 to 3 cents lower. Soybeans 1 to 2 cents higher. Rainfall continued to slow spring wheat planting in several areas but some progress has been reported. Sharp gains in wheat bids over the past couple of days, however, spurred profit taking and weakness was noted. Export demand has been slow since Egypt's substantial purchase last week.

Corn bids slid lower from technical corrections and fund selling in corn pits. Muddy, wet fields continued to slow corn planting but forecasts for drier weather by next week, pressured bids. South Korea's large corn purchase this morning limited declines in corn. Some strength was seen in bean pits as oil demand improved and indications China may tender overnight for US oil, offered support to bids.

Export demand:

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 29-JUNE 4, 1995

MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 29.

OLD LORE, NEW MOON

The new Moon this month falls on Memorial Day. Folklore regards the new Moon as a time to shear sheep, cut lumber for bridges, cure whooping cough, and go fishing. Weather lore says that if the old Moon is seen in the arms of the new (or the faint outline of the full disk is illuminated by the bright crescent), a storm is coming. Likewise, if you can't hang your hat on the lower point of the crescent, rain is predicted. To see a new Moon in your dreams signifies increasing fortune and a compatible marriage. In some cultures, new Moon festivals celebrate the returning of the night's illumination.

". . . the moon . . . apparent queen . . . o'er the dark, her silver mantle threw." — John Milton

TIP OF THE WEEK

MAGIC FINGERS

- 1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1/2 cup melted butter
- 2 cups (12 ounces) chocolate chips
- 1 cup shredded coconut
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)

Mix crumbs and melted butter together and press into the bottom of a 9x13-inch baking pan. Layer the chips over the crumbs, then layer on the coconut and the walnuts. Pour the sweetened condensed milk evenly over all. Bake at 350° F for about 25 minutes. Cool slightly and cut into long bars.

Makes about 24.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the crescent of the Moon holds water, We will have a dry spell.

Expect rain when dogs' tails straighten.

Special Offer: Handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs Send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept. UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
MAY 24, 1995

Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last Monday: Feeder steers firm to 2.00 higher with full advance over 800 lbs.; feeder heifers steady to 1.00 higher. Few stockers and calves near steady. Demand good for feeders, stockers, and thin calves; demand light to moderate for balance of calves. Flesh condition and quality of supply was improved for buyers but weigh-ups were on sellers side. Flesh condition of feeder cattle was light-medium thru moderate-flesh with less cattle in heavy flesh than last week. Many feeders were in desireable flesh. Quality average thru attractive, moderate end plain. Weigh-ups average to many full. Wheat is playing out and cattle are making the transition to grass pasture which will complete the change from heavy to light flesh come early June.

Slaughter cows and bulls steady to 1.00 higher. Demand from packers remains fairly good. Total of 496 cows and bulls sold with about 30 percent returning to the country.

Receipts this week 14,350; last week 10,740; last year 13,833.

Supply consisted of 86 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 11 percent calves under 600 lbs; 3 percent cows and bulls.

Dairy Day At Veteran's Stadium

We often second guess milk promotion programs by asking if they really do what they set out to do; that is, sell more milk and get consumers in the habit of drinking their milk. But the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association's dairy day program at the Phillies/Mets baseball game last Saturday night and the corresponding educational efforts in the Philadelphia School District in March leaves no question about effectiveness.

In visits to the schools, the Phillie Phanatic ballclub mascot, delivered a message of "drink your milk" to the youngsters in 22 schools. In addition, 120,000 other children in Philadelphia's 186 elementary schools received pocket folders for their school work that carred reminders to eat breakfast and drink milk.

Because of who the Phanatic is, the children listened—and drank their milk. And for the second year of MAMMA's school district campaign, milk sales increased. In research work done by several Harvard medical professors, the MAMMA/Phanatic promotion was labeled "one of the most powerful methods for increasing school meal participation used by the Philadelphia School Food Service."

Therefore, it can be said that not only was the dairy industry served by the promotion, the youth who were "cowed" into more healthy diets were also served with an increase in overall health. It's hard to question this kind of use of check-off dollars.

Of course, the grand finale came at the ballgame when the cows were milked between home plate and the pitching mound. Year after year, the Andy Stoltzfus family from Morgantown make the effort to bring cows to the stadium so these young milk drinkers (and their parents and thousands of other baseball fans) know where milk comes from.

No questions need to be asked here. Everyone involved with the MAMMA/Phanatic milk promotion program deserves a lot of credit for their efforts that climax in Dairy Day at Veteran's Stadium.

To Understand Reassessment Notice

By now most farmers have received their reassessment notices. However, there is some confusion on what the notices mean.

The increase in property value is not how much your taxes will be going up. Since all properties were reassessed, the total tax base in the county increased.

Based on preliminary information, this increase was six times. Thus, if your property value went up six times, your taxes will be similar to what they were. If it went up less than six times, your taxes will decrease and if they went up more than six times, your taxes will increase.

To estimate your new taxes, divide your new market value by old market value and the result by six. Then multiply this number by your 1995 taxes. The result is your estimate of 1996 taxes. Example: $600,000 (new market value) divided by 50,000 (old market value) divided by 6 equals 12 divided by 6 = 2 times increase. Clean and Green value for this farm was $294,800. Using the above formula, the taxes decreased. (294,800 divided by 50,000 divided by 6 equals 0.98).

Most farms I have reviewed have seen an market value increase between 12 and 15 times. With Clean and Green, the increase is 0.10 to 0.15 times. With Clean and Green, the taxes on the land have declined.

However, the taxes on your home and buildings have increased more than the decline on the land.

If you have any questions on your reassessment, contact the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension office at (717) 394-6851.

Remember, the deadline has been extended to September 1, 1995 to file for Clean and Green.

To Call Before You Dig

This past week, a backhoe dug up a gas line that caused personal injury and loss of service to several families. This should remind us to call before we dig or drill.

The number to call at least 72 hours in advance of digging but no more than 10 days before is (800) 242-1776. This will keep you from accidentally hitting cables and pipelines and causing problems.

With summer being a major construction time around farms, you need to make this important phone call. By calling and seeing if any underground utilities have been installed could save you a lot of money.

It seems like every year we have an incident of a cable or pipeline being damaged. So do not become the next news headline. Call before you dig or drill.

To Scout For Corn Cutworm Damage

When corn emerges, the first insect to be looking for is the black cutworm.

The cutworm larvae usually begins feeding about mid-May in Lancaster County. The black cutworm will damage plants by cutting either above or below the soil surface or by tunneling into the plant.

Soil conditions usually influence where the larvae feed. Under dry conditions, the feeding is normally below ground level. Under moist conditions, the feeding is usually above ground level.

The corn fields with the highest risk of damage from cutworms are those that had weeds in them within seven days of planting. The economic threshold in Pennsylvania is three percent of the plants cut off or 5 cutworms per 100 plants.

In many fields, growers attempt to control both rootworm and cutworm with a planter application of an insecticide. This will control most of the cutworms. However, scouting should not be neglected in case the planter application fails to control the cutworms.

Under dry conditions, the effectiveness of Lorsban as a rescue treatment may be improved with the use of a rotary hoe to slightly incorporate the material into the soil where the larvae is living, according to Dr. M. E. Rice, Iowa. If one of the pyrethroids insecticides such as Ambush, Asana or Pounce is used, they should not be incorporated.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MISSING LIFE'S BEST-OF-ALL
May 28, 1995

MISSING LIFE'S BEST-OF-ALL
May 28, 1995

Background Scripture:
I Corinthians 13
Devotional Reading:
John 15:9-17

Few New Testament chapters are more revered and remembered than I Corinthians 13.

And few biblical passages are more secretly disbelieved or ignored!

What do I mean by that? I mean that, despite what we say about love, we do not often act as if we believe Paul when he says, "If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am a noisy gong or clanging cymbal" (13:1). Without the gift of love, says Paul, none of the other gifts really count. Love is "the greatest of these" (13:3), but often we do not act that way.

Unfortunately it is very seldom that I see the gift of love in a person recognized and honored in the church. Ministers are generally not chosen because the gift of love is evident in them. Their perceived giftedness is more likely to do with their sermonic gifts of eloquence or entertainment, administrative skills or ecclesiastical connectedness. But rarely, if ever, are they selected for their love.

MOST CONSEQUENTIAL

This also applies to lay people in the churches. I have seen many lay people recognized for their gifts — financial, leadership, or prominence — but seldom for their love. Even granting that I may be overstating the case a bit, who would want to contend that love is regarded as the greatest gift in the church?

So if there is anything at all in what I have been saying why is this so? Maybe one reason is that human beings tend to overvalue the things they can see or touch. A spellbinding sermon is very visible and audible. A benevolent lay person's financial gift is also very tangible and produces tangible results. But love rarely shows up under a microscope, on a radar screen, or on a profit-and-loss statement. Often it is intangible, but we must not therefore conclude that it is inconsequential. Actually, as Paul tells us, it is the most consequential force in the world: "Love never ends."

I first preached on I Cor. 13 some 40 years ago. With my mind I believed Paul when he said "the greatest of these is love." Today, however, I know with my heart that Paul was right. Love is the greatest gift of all and without it all other gifts pale — in our lives, in our churches and in the world.

BEING AND DOING

Looking back today, I don't think I really knew then what love is. I thought that love was synonymous with feeling loving. But notice that nowhere in I Cor. 13 does Paul talk about love as a feeling. He talks about being and doing. Love is not jealous, boastful, irritable, resentful, arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way nor rejoice at wrong. There have been times when I have tried to have one or more of the above and love. But it doesn't work. Love is patient and kind. it rejoices in the right, bears all things, believes all things, endures all things. And it never ends.

It does not end because we do not feel loving nor because the object of our love is no longer meeting our conditions. True love — the love that Christ demonstrated for us in his life and in his death and to which he calls us — outlasts everything else.

If we really believe that, then our churches will become fellowships of self-giving rather than circles of self-congratulation, of forgiveness and reconciliation rather than of judgment and separation. Otherwise, we will be missing out on God's greatest of all gifts.

WITH NEW EXCEED, THE BROADLEAVES UP HERE DON'T HAVE A CHANCE.

FOR THE NEXT 30 DAYS, NEITHER DO THE WEEDS DOWN HERE.

There's a new postemergence herbicide for corn just out from Ciba Crop Protection that knocks down your toughest broadleaves, then keeps them down with longer residual control. It's called Exceed.

Exceed knocks down 27 different broadleaves, including velvetleaf, ragweed, pigweed, cocklebur and lambsquarters. And it delivers up to four weeks of residual control.

But the benefits don't stop there. Exceed also gives you a wide application window and excellent crop safety. There's still time to include new Exceed in your crop plans for this year. See your dealer for details on this powerful new tool. Exceed. It gets more weeds. It gives you more time to get them.

FOR DOUBLE-CROP SOYBEANS THERE'S ONLY ONE LEADER OF THE PACK.

PURSUIT® herbicide is today's best tool for double-crop beans. It not only delivers the highest degree of overall weed control, it's also the only postemergence product that combines contact and residual activity to give you superior control of more than 40 tough-to-control grasses and broadleaf weeds. Including velvetleaf, foxtails, cocklebur, pigweeds, nightshades, common ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflower, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass. Without causing crop injury. And because of its advanced chemistry and low rates of application, PURSUIT offers a responsible choice for the environment. That's the kind of leadership everyone can respect. And reason enough to try PURSUIT. See us soon.

There's something extra in a starter fertilizer program.

Starter fertilizers unlock benefits for corn farmers. They stimulate seedling growth, hasten crop maturity, improve crop tolerance to some insects, increase crop competition with weeds and frequently increase yields, particularly in production fields featuring conservation tillage and irrigation. Starter fertilizers make crop production more environmentally sound because they improve fertilizer uptake efficiency.

The agronomic benefits of starter fertilizers increase crop productivity and profits from corn production.

Lower The Boom On Broadleaf Weeds

If you've got broadleaf weeds competing with your corn crop, it's time to lower the boom with Beacon® postemergent herbicide.

Beacon controls over 30 common and tough broadleaf weeds. Weeds like cocklebur, nightshade, pigweed, sunflower, smartweed and ragweed don't stand a chance to Beacon. You even have the freedom to apply Beacon at the optimum weed height of those target weeds. Beacon can be applied on 4- to 20-inch corn. And the control doesn't stop there. Keep those second and third flushes of weeds out of your corn field with up to 3 weeks of residual control. You can be reassured knowing that while Beacon is tough on broadleafs, it's gentle on your corn. Beacon has proven safe on more than 99% of corn hybrids.

So don't let broadleaf worries get you down. Instead, lower the boom and let Beacon take them down.

MMI To Congressional Panel: Keep Federal Milk Orders

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—The Federal Milk Marketing Order system needs to be retained, even though it needs changing to reflect current market conditions, Lewis Gardner, vice chairman of Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), told a congressional panel conducting a hearing in Syracuse, N.Y., on April 24.

"The facts are that, in the many years the Federal Milk Marketing Order program has been in existence, it has functioned as intended," Gardner said to the U.S. House Committee on Agriculture's Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry.

"Consumers have obtained adequate supplies of fresh fluid milk at reasonable prices. At the same time, producers have been assured they will receive prices for their milk based on how that milk was ultimately used," Gardner said.

Gardner, who testified on behalf of the 13,300 dairy farmers associated with the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives, cautioned that any changes made in the federal order system should not be made at the expense of any one region in the country. (The Council represents farmers from New England to Kentucky, from Michigan to Delaware.)

"Needless to say," he said, farmers "would like higher prices. In order to have higher prices, without limiting production, we must expand our markets."

Exports present the greatest potential for such income-producing expansion, he said.

"Export market development should be given the highest priority in the 1995 Farm Bill," he said, adding that it should be done especially since agriculture exports have not grown as fast as other products, and dairy remains very small as measured in dollars.

In related points, he said the Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP) should remain fully funded within the requirements of GATT, especially as the U.S. dairy industry develops export markets.

Also, development of value-added dairy exports (such as ice cream, yogurt and specialty cheeses) needs additional emphasis. "This is the area most promising to our industry's future," he said.

Current assessments on dairy farmers (which pay for more than half the cost of the dairy support program) should be eliminated, with monies then channeled into helping the industry expand export markets, he said.

Gardner also told the Congressional subcommittee that Class I differentials should reflect supply and demand conditions for fluid milk in more local geographic regions, not just the distance from Eau Claire, Wis.; and that Congress should give serious consideration to expanding the Conservation Reserve Program to help dairy and other livestock producers pay for water quality-related farm improvements.

Gardner, who operates a family farm in Galeton, was president of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative before it merged with MMI. The new MMI now has 9,000 member farmers who produce nearly 6 billion pounds of milk annually, making it the third largest dairy cooperative in the country.

ration. "Everything is a total mixed ration and is balanced," said Barley.

Some of the by-products are provided to Barley free of charge. He must provide transportation. At the local food processing company, trailers are loaded with the product to be delivered to Star Rock Farms.

Items such as the salad remnants are provided, but because of the high moisture content are not as valuable as feed sources.

"The worse thing about salad is there's not enough energy there to put weight on the cattle," he said. "It'll maintain them real well, but it won't put on the weight."

Barley purchases Virginia calves from B&R Cattle. About 50-100 at a time are brought in, weighing about 550 pounds each, to finish. He ships about 35-40 head at a time. The price he obtains, which varies depending on year and market, from Moyer Packing, is from the dressing weight. (Lately, Barley has been obtaining about $1.02 per pound at dressing weight.)

What makes the operation difficult is the lack of consistency in the supply. The by-products vary as to when they are available for pickup and delivery to the farm.

Barley said, "You never know what your supply is going to be. It's not consistent."

He feeds to finish the cattle.

"If you are going to feed them until the end like that, you have to feed them a high-energy ration — comparable to corn — and put the weight on quickly," he said.

Barley's farm is just one of three tour sites selected for the field day.

Several farms comprise the tour on June 17. Another farm, the Nissley Bros. Farm in Mount Joy, uses food by-products. The Nissley Farm, which finishes about 300 head of cattle per year, utilizes potato chip by-products provided by a local chip manufacturer.

Another farm tour will be conducted of the Dwight Hess Farm, Mount Joy, which finishes about 300 head of cattle per year.

The program begins at 8:30 a.m. at the Lloyd F. Furman Memorial Park in Maytown, in the western part of the county. There, buses will board on a staggered schedule

Walking down the aisle in the main barn, where 750 steers are housed, Barley kicks some of the remnants of the by-products into the troughs. A pineapple head here, a slice of honeydew there, a lemon here, an open grapefruit there, in addition to carrots and other salad remnants make up a portion of the feed for cattle.

Barley said, "The best food by-product is something that is high in energy and high in protein and is consistent, with low moisture." Here, he inspects a herd of Texas Longhorn.

Lancaster County To Develop A Water Management Plan

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A project to plan for the protection of water resources in Lancaster County is under way.

As a first step, a Water Resource Protection Planning Workshop directed toward local officials and water authority personnel who operate public water systems was held on Wednesday, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

Small informal groups will discussed wellhead protection techniques and plans that have been successful in other communities.

Residents of Lancaster County have identified water as a "sacred resource" that must be protected.

In response to this concern, the Lancaster County Commissioners have committed funding and personnel to develop a water resource management plan to assure that safe drinking water is available for future generations.

As part of this project, R.E. Wright Environmental, Inc. (REWEI) was recently awarded a contract for the second part of a three-step program to develop a Water Resource Plan for Lancaster County. REWEI is to be working with Gehringer-Roth Associates, a Lancaster County planning firm, to develop a water supply and wellhead protection plan.

The first part of the water resources project, already under way, includes computer mapping by Millersville University, with the help of ACER Engineers and Consultants, Inc., of areas with possible groundwater problems.

The second part of the project will involve developing a plan to manage water resources, including ways to protect the County's groundwater resources from overuse or contamination.

The third part of the project will focus on a public education program.

The primary objectives of this study will include:

- An update and review of planning information of the water resources in Lancaster County.
- A review of water supplies, including municipal supplies, and public and private wells.
- Creation of a computerized GIS (geographic information system) map of all current and projected water service areas.
- Development of a water supply plan.
- Development of a wellhead protection program.
- A public information program.

The water supply plan will evaluate the availability and quality of the County's water supplies, and will project the need for water through the year 2010.

The wellhead protection program will include geologic studies to determine which areas must be protected to assure the safety of our drinking water.

Four pilor studies will be conducted to develop guidelines and methods for communities to use when they develop their own wellhead protection programs.

Because water knows no political boundaries, strong cooperation among municipalities will be imperative.

The Water Resources Plan for Lancaster County is a cooperative effort involving the Lancaster County Planning Commission, the Conestoga Valley Association, Franklin and Marshall College, the League of Women Voters of Lancaster County, Millersville University, the Pennsylvania Rural Water Association, the Penn State Cooperative Extension, and the Lancaster County Conservation District.

If you think this project is important to your community, please contact your public officials and encourage them to participate.

DER Recognizes Twin Cedars Club

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Twin Cedars Gun Club in Gratz was recently recognized by the state Department of Environmental Resources Bureau of Forestry as a forest steward.

From the left, Paul Troutman presents a forest stewardship honor to members of the Twin Cedars Gun Club, John Grow, secretary, Douglas Harrison, president, and William Morgan, member.

The designation is an honor bestowed by the DER to forest landowners who have made a commitment to managing their forest resources, to ensure forest health and productivity for years to come.

Paul Troutman, service forester for the Bureau of Forestry, presented the award to the club at its property, where club members have been managing its 551-acre forest for wildlife.

Donald P. Oaks, district forester for the bureau's Weiser Forest District, said the club started the process of becoming a forest steward by having a forest stewardship plan prepared by Paul Hyde, a Thompsontown forestry consultant.

The stewardship program was initiated by the National Association of State Foresters. It was authorized in the forestry title of the 1990 Farm Bill and is administered through the U.S. Forest Service.

In Pennsylvania, the program is directed by DER's Bureau of Forestry, with guidance from a stewardship steering committee.

The bureau has been using the help of Penn State University to build public education and awareness of the award.

In a news release, Oaks said the stewardship program challenges landowners to understand the natural process taking place in the forest, and to ensure that changes to the forest are made in such a way as to guarantee the resource will continue to provide for wildlife and humans.

to three different destinations. At noon, the buses will return and lunch will be served by the PCA's Keystone Ribeye Sandwich crew. After lunch, Charles Brosius, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, will address the group. The afternoon schedule will include a repeat of the sessions from the morning.

Scheduled to speak at the field day are the following:

- Harold Harpster, Penn State research on feeding food processing by-products.
- John Comerford, Penn State beef specialist, on how to interpret good feed efficieny in cattle.
- John Burt, Lancaster County conservation district technician, on controlling soil erosion and feedlot runoff.
- An ag engineer to discuss new facilities.

Also scheduled is a tour of the Cameron Estates and Donegal Plantation for the spouses. There will be a lot of activities for children at the park.

Bovine Stars Make A Pitch For Kids To Drink Their Milk

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

PHILADELPHIA — From the natural green pastures of Morgantown to the artificial turf in Veteran's Statium, two of Andy Stoltzfus's Registered Holstein cows came to make a pitch for milk in front of 38,000 fans Saturday night. Like many of the Phillies' relief pitchers that make the treck from the right field bull pen, the Caernarvon milk pitchers, Shelly and Jofit, were a little stage shy as they entered the arena. It took a little halter pulling and tail twisting to get the milk stars on the mound.

The 2,000 noisy elementary students from the School District of Philadelphia, who were guests of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, along with the antics of the Phillie Phanatic, was enough to make any home-bred, down-on-the-farm bovine draw back from this initiation to the turmoil of city life.

The whole ordeal is especially disconcerting when you are expected to do such private farm things like let your milk down between the pitcher's mound and home plate for two teams of city-bred media-types contestants who didn't know if they should pull, jerk, squeeze—or pump the tail.

At any rate, everyone had fun except the cows, and milk was rated up there with a homerun on the scoreboard.

This was all part of MAMMA's Dairy Day at Veteran's Stadium as a reward to the students for drinking their milk as part of the "Milk Is Phantastic" school breakfast promotion held in March. This was the second year for the MAMMA/Phanatic promotion to increase milk consumption amoung children in grades kindergarten through sixth grade. The Phillies' mascot delivered a powerful milk and fitness message to the children in 22 schools with his rap song and skit all about milk and the importance of eating breakfast.

Nearly 120,000 children in Philadelphia's 186 elementary schools received pocket folders for their school work that carried the message, "Shoot For The Stars! Powered By A Healthy Breakfast With Milk!" on the front and on the back a colorful illustration showing the five food groups with the recommended servings for children.

Research shows that this promotion is one of the most powerful methods for increasing school meal participation used by the Philadelphia school food service. MAMMA conducted an "I Love Milk at Breakfast" contest throughout the entire school district. Students who drank their milk with breakfast everyday during National School breakfast week were eligible to win either Phillies baseball tickets or a Phillie Phanatic Growth Poster. At the game youngsters under 14 received one of these Phanatic posters to remind them to drink milk everyday.

And the Phillies beat the Mets 10 to 8.

GRAIN/ENERGY SUPPLEMENTATION FOR DAIRY GRAZING SYSTEMS

Lawrence D. Muller and Lisa A. Holden
Penn State University

The use of and interest in pasture as a major source of forage for dairy cows continues to increase, primarily because of economic constraints. Feed costs are the largest expense on the dairy farm and are typically decreased about $1.00 to $1.50/cwt. of milk during the grazing season. Supplemental feeding with pasture based systems is more difficult than with confinement systems. Some of the most common nutritionally related questions from producers and consultants with pastures systems include:

- How much supplemental grain or energy should be fed?
- What should be the feed ingredients and nutrient composition of the grain mixtures?
- What is the profitability of each additional unit of grain that is fed?

These questions and others like them will be the focus of some of the articles written for this column. This article will touch on some of the reasons why supplemental grain feeding for grazing dairy cows is a profitable decision for many graziers.

A recent article in a widely read grazing magazine questioned the economics of supplemental feeding in the United States when pasture is well managed and of high quality and quantity. The essence of this article is that it is not economical to feed grain, bypass protein, supplementatl forages (unless pasture quantity is inadequate), or total mixed ration (TMR). However, science, producer experiences, and economics do not support the "no supplementation" approach with high producing cows in the U.S. Certainly, improved grazing management to increase the quantity and quality of pasture can reduce the supplemental feed needs and improve profitability.

Your own farm information about feed costs, herd health, milk production, body condition, and reproductive performance can be very useful in making feeding management decisions. Many graziers have looked to the New Zealand dairy system for help in making grazing decisions. While this information can be very useful, keep in mind the differences between the New Zealand situation and your own farm situation. Cows in New Zealand graze low cost pasture year round as the sole source of nutrients with no supplemental grain and produce about 7,000 pounds of milk per cow. In New Zealand, grain costs are often double and milk prices one-half compared to Pennsylvania. Despite the fact that current economic conditions in New Zealand do favor supplemental grain feeding, current research for dairy producers in New Zealand is focusing on nutritional strategies to increase production and optimize profit.

Forage alone. What can we expect from Pennsylvania cows if pasture is the only source of feed? Research studies in the U.S. with high producing cows fed only pasture are limited. A study in Wisconsin in which high quality alfalfa hay crop silage was the only forage had a total lactation milk yield of 12,700 pounds of milk or 41.6 pounds per day. The DMI for the total lactation averaged 41 pounds per day, or 3.1 percent of body weight. These cows had lower body condition than cows fed varying the amounts of supplemental grain.

Based on this and other studies, and on estimates of energy needs for maintenance and activity vs. energy intake from pastures, herbage from well managed pastures should be sufficient to maintain 35 to 45 pounds of milk per day with little or no supplemental energy. This production may be higher with legume and grass/legume pastures than with mostly grass pasture because of higher DMI from pasture containing legumes.

Cows in early lactation may be expected to produce 50 to 60 pounds of milk per day with pasture as the only forage. However, these cows would lose extensive body weight and condition because of inadequate dry matter and energy intake from only pasture. Cows often have a lower body condition when grazed compared to cows under confinement. Reproductive efficiency may decline if cows lose too much condition.

Supplemental energy/grain. Energy is thought to be the most limiting nutrient for profitable milk production and normal reproductive performance when pasture is the major source of forage. The amount of grain fed to increase the total energy intake on a pasture based system can have long-term effects on energy balance, milk production, body weight and condition changes, reproductive performance, and profitability. Research and producer experiences indicate that supplemental energy from grain is beneficial and profitable with high producing cows under a grazing system.

Grain benefits the cow in two ways: (1) providing needed energy for activity (walking, grazing) and (2) providing a source of rumen available non-structural carbohydrate (NSC). While pasture can be quite high in protein, it lacks NSC. Without additional NSC in the diet, protein is used for energy, and excess nitrogen is excreted in urine. Thus, valuable protein is lost to the animal and excreted into the environment. The result is lower animal production and a higher nutrient loading into soil and water.

Providing grain supplements rich in NSC and lower in protein (nitrogen) can help to "capture" more of the protein in pasture and "convert" it to milk protein. This efficient use of resources helps to balance out the total use/reuse of nutrients in the whole farm system. Research shows milk production responses of ½ to 1½ pounds for each pound of grain fed. The milk response to grain is usually highest with the first amounts of grain fed and diminishes as additional grain is fed. In the previously mentioned Wisconsin research with alfalfa haylage crop silage, the milk response to the first 2,000 pounds of grain fed was about 2,000 pounds of milk, or 1 pound of milk per 1 pound grain. Research at Ohio State reported about a 1 pound milk response to 1 pound of grain fed with both orchardgrass and alfalfa based pasture systems. With milk priced at 12 cents per pound and grain at 6 cents per pound, grain feeding on pasture makes economic sense. In addition, each pound of grain fed displaces or substitutes for about ⅓ pound of pasture DM. Thus, total DMI will increase with each pound of grain fed.

Bottom line. The bottom line is that grain feeding for high producing cows on pasture results in higher DMI, which translates into higher, profitable milk production and improved body condition. Based on this information and our research at Penn State, we have developoed the grain feeding guidelines in the following table.

| 4% FCM | Spring | | Summer | | Fall | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Production (lb) | lb | G:M[c] | lb | G:M[c] | lb | G:M[c] |
| >80 | 20 | 1:4 to 1:5 | 25-27 | 1:3 | 20 | 1:4 to 1:5 |
| 70 | 16-18 | 1:4 to 1:5 | 21-23 | 1:3 to 1:4 | 16-18 | 1:4 to 1:5 |
| 60 | 12-14 | 1:4 to 1:5 | 15-18 | 1:5 | 12-14 | 1:5 |
| 50 | 8-10 | 1:5 to 1:6 | 10-12 | 1:4 to 1:5 | 8-10 | 1:4 to 1:5 |
| <40 | 6-8 | 1:6 to 1:7 | 8-10 | 1:5 to 1:6 | 6-8 | 1:6 to 1:7 |

[a]Assume 1300 lb. bodyweight
[b]These guidelines are based on high quality grass pasture availbale in adequate quantities assuming the approximate DMI. Lower quality forage will require more grain. Maximum grain DM fed should be equivalent to about 2% of bodyweight. Some adjustment of grain should be made based on body condition scores and stage of lactation. Lower amounts are likely needed when the pasture contains legumes.
[c]Grain: milk ratio (DM basis).

The amount of grain or supplement to feed depends on the "manager's eye" when monitoring milk production and body condition. The make-up of the concentrate mixture can range from either simple to complex formulation, but should complement the forage.

Future articles will discuss the makeup of the concentrate mixture in more detail. The values in the table are merely guidelines. Higher rates of grain feeding may be needed when cows are thin, walking long distances to pasture,

Farm Sideline Turns Into Half Century Manufacturing Business

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Fifty years ago a limestone quarry was located on the Stoltzfus family dairy farm in Morgantown. The quarry, which was a source of lime for local farmers, is now crossed by the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

The farm quarry was not unusual for the countryside around Morgantown. "In this territory there's an old limestone kiln on practically every farm," Stoltzfus says.

In the 1930s, when the Civilian Conservation Corps began spreading lime on fields, farmers saw that where the lime was applied more thickly, clover grew better. "Farmers soon realized that for every dollar they spent on lime, they could get ten dollars back in clover," remembers C. U., as he is known.

Much of the limestone produced in the early part of this century was used for road stone. In fact, Stoltzfus recalls, four to five miles of Route 10 north of Morgantown got its stone from the quarry on his father's farm.

Gradually, as farmers realized lime's importance in neutralizing soil acidity and enhancing the uptake of potash and other soil nutrients, more and more lime was applied to local fields.

Stoltzfus explains that raw limestone today is ground to produce lime fine enough for use on farm fields. When he was a youth, however, a usable product was created by burning limestone in kilns. Burned lime was hauled into the field where it was to be applied, then allowed to "slack" over a period of a couple of months. It was then spread over the field by hand.

"We blasted the limestone out of the quarry with dynamite. We used the 'light-and-run' technique. We would watch for cars, then set it off. It wasn't very sophisticated, but it did the job."

By the late 1930s, Stoltzfus had crushing equipment capable of producing a couple of tons per hour. That's when he began developing machines for spreading the lime.

Technical Challenges

Stoltzfus built his first spreader to allow him to spread lime on his neighbors' fields. Since he didn't know how to weld, he had a local Mennonite welder help him. The original spreader had a spinner-type mechanism to broadcast the lime, which worked quite well. But other technical problems needed more work. "At first we broke a lot of transmission gears," said C.U. "At one time we bought all the 4-speed transmissions from all the junk yards in the area."

Not every invention was a success. The booms on this experimental spreader from the 1950s were tubes which shot lime out the sides. It proved too dusty.

Another challenge was the auger. Stock augers were too large for C. U.'s spreaders. At first he worked on the spreaders at night as a sideline and in the winter. But when he finally figured out how to make his own auger fabrications, he became fully involved in the spreader manufacturing business.

C. U. Stoltzfus and Ruth Weiler were married in June 1945, the same year the first spreader was built for resale, rather than for his own use. With Ruth's experience in bookkeeping, they formed a team that continues today, under the oversight of the next generation.

Spreaders Catch On, Evolve

For selling, nothing worked better than taking a spreader into a farmer's field. Once farmers saw what the spreader could do and how well it was built, it generally came down to settling on a fair price. "We sold our first spreader to a neighbor who watched us spread with it. Then we sold one to a farmer from York County who had heard about it," recalls Stoltzfus. "He came to see the spreader work, then we had a little lunch, and he drove the spreader home."

Several spreader innovations followed. Dust was such a problem with early models that C. U. patented a spreader with a canvas cover to contain it. His wife Ruth recalls one of the first times she saw C. U. "He was rumbling down the road in his spreader with dust flying everywhere."

Lime spreaders in the early years were meant for custom spreading, meaning that they were mounted on trucks, allowing custom applicators to move quickly from farm to farm. To save trips to the field, C. U. designed a tender to haul along behind truck-mounted spreaders, saving time and keeping costs down. This concept led to another innovative idea: a pull-type spreader that a farmer could use with his own tractor. This put lime and fertilizer spreading capabilities into the hands of farmers who wanted to be able to control the timing of applications without waiting for custom applicators to get to them.

Though the designs were effective, the entire manufacturing process was more practical than highly disciplined. "We didn't have any working drawings," said Stoltzfus. "We used the 'hands-on' building method. We just built them and they worked." Though today's manufacturing methods are more controlled, some things haven't changed in decades. Speaking of the first pull-type spreaders, Stoltzfus said "The way we made it first is the way we make it today."

In the mid-1960's C. U. designed a truck mounted boom-type spreader. It allowed for more even application of dry lime, and was better at keeping dust down. It was a unique enough design to qualify for another patent. Today this design is also used to spread dry chemical and seed mixtures.

Christian U. and Ruth Stoltzfus celebrate 50 years of marriage and working together building agricultural spreading equipment.

Success From Solving Others' Problems

Another problem farmers faced was spreading "wet" lime. Delivered and dumped in mounds for economy purposes, often it was rained on and became very tough to spread. The Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreader was designed to handle this difficult material. "The secret to this machine is in the correct width and draw of the apron chain," said Stoltzfus.

Farmers soon found, especially in upstate New York, that the spreader paid for itself within the first year because of the economy of spreading stockpiled lime.

Stoltzfus almost built himself out of business. The spreaders operate so reliably and are so durable that many are still in use after 15, 20, even 30 years. "We took a 15 year-old spreader back in trade that had had no maintenance. It still works well," C. U. reports. "After a while, when everyone has one that wants one, and they don't break down, you have to come up with some other ideas to keep things going."

New Ways of Looking at Things

C. U.'s health problems in the 1980's led to hiring C. U. and Ruth's son-in-law, Gary Lake, as General Manager of the company. He introduced some changes in the company's direction. Today Stoltzfus makes spreaders for specialized markets such as orchards, vegetable farms and highway maintenance use. Also, the company has become a dealership for other lines of ag chemical handling and application equipment.

C. U. has seen many farming practice changes over 50 years "We farmed with horses until we got our first tractor in the 1930s," he said. "We harvested corn by hand, where today you have 12-row combines. We used to use a lot of calcium phosphate and manure, but there were very few pesticides. The ones we did have were pretty dangerous, like arsenate of lead. In the 1960s and '70s pesticides were applied in much heavier applications than today. There's a new sensitivity to caring for the land and keeping chemical use to a minimum. In some ways it's like going back to the ways we used to do things," Stoltzfus said.

After 50 years in the spreader business, C. U. continues to look to the future. Today he works on research and development projects. The latest spreader innovation is an all-purpose spreader called the CU 56i, after its inventor. It combines

Farm Survey Set For June

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) enumerators will contact approximately 2,400 Pennsylvania farmers during the first half of June to ask them to take part in a nationwide survey of American agriculture.

As the primary source of agricultural information for NASS data, this survey is one of the largest and most important conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

The resulting information will be used to make reliable state, regional, and national estimates of crop acreage, grain stocks, and hog inventories. The Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS) in Harrisburg is handling the Pennsylvania portion of the survey.

This June survey is particularly vital. It will provide the first clear indications of the potential production of major crops throughout the state.

Producers themselves rely on the data to reach valid production, marketing, and investment decisions. Congresspersons and regulators use the information to produce better regulations and farm programs.

Industry analysts, extension agents, farm organizations, and agricultural lenders need the information to better serve and advise farmers and enable them to make decisions for both short and long range planning of their crop and/or livestock operations.

It is therefore important for Pennsylvania farmers to participate in the survey to ensure that local agriculture is accurately portrayed. Most producers selected for interviews will soon be notified by mail.

"We safeguard the confidentiality of all survey responses," Wally Evans, state statistician, said. "Data about individual operations are used only in conjunction with information from other producers."

Participants may receive summarized survey results for Pennsylvania and the nation upon request.

Producers To Vote On Lamb And Wool Checkoff Referendum

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

WAYNESBURG (Greene Co.) — Sheep producers will soon be asked to vote to approve, for the first time, an industrywide checkoff program that will go a long way to promote domestic sheep and wool.

Hard fought through the last minutes of the 104th U.S. Congress in the fall of 1994, the Sheep Promotion, Research, and Information Act of 1994 "is the only game in town to maintain any stability within the U.S. sheep industry," wrote Janet Mawhinney, member of the 13-person Referendum Task Force for the American Sheep Industry (ASI) Association, in a recent letter to Lancaster Farming.

Mawhinney operates a 100-ewe Dorset breeding and custom freezing operation in Waynesburg with her husband Michael. Contacted by phone on Tuesday, Janet said the proposed checkoff on lamb is for one cent per pound on both domestic and imported lamb based on weight at the time of sale. On domestic wool, the proposed checkoff amount is two cents per pound grease at the time of sale. The amount to be raised according to checkoff guidelines has a cap of 2.5 cents per pound.

In both cases, as in other industry checkoff programs, the amount would be deducted from the producer's check at the time of sale.

Producers who have at least one sheep for at least 30 days, including youth, are eligible to vote. Those who previously signed up for Wool Act support payments will have the referendum mailed to them in the fall. Producers can also obtain referendum forms at the local Consolidated Farm Service Agency office. The referendum will be voted upon in mid-October this year, according to Mawhinney.

The Waynesburg sheep producers, who operate Mawhinney Mountain Dorsets, are concerned that the loss of local markets to importers may cause thousands to quit the business. After the passage of S.B. 1548 in the fall of 1993, which phased out the 1954 Wool Act, thousands of producers have been lost.

Sheep producers depended on the Wool Act, which provided money to operate from tariffs on imported wool products, to survive. As a result of the phasing out (which reduced rates to 50 percent for the 1995 crop), as much as 60 percent of the market has been lost to importers.

According to Joseph Vogel, president of the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association, the amount paid through the program for 1995 will only be about 25 percent of normal.

Vogel views the checkoff program as a "self help" program. According to Vogel, there are about 3,800 sheep producers in Pennsylvania, and of them, at least a third derive the major portion of their income from sheep production.

"It's scary," said Janet Mawhinney. "I don't want to see us lose our industry here. There are so many benefits that it provides."

About 18 percent of individual sheep and wool producers have been lost in the U.S. because of the phasing out of the Wool Act, according to Mawhinney.

While many industry promotion programs spend many millions of dollars on education, promotion, and research, the sheep and wool industry is allocated only $7 million per year. This compares to $80 million spent by the beef industry, $45 million spent by the cotton industry, and $40 million spent by the pork industry, according to Mawhinney.

"Is it any wonder we are unable to have a 'catchy' television promotion?" wrote Mawhinney in a news release.

Of the $7 million allocated to the sheep industry, most of the Wool Act tariff money went to deficit reduction, with little returned for education and promotion.

With the passage of the checkoff, the total amount expected for promotion of lamb and wool will rise from the current $7 million under the Wool act to $13 million under the proposed checkoff program. According to Vogel's estimates, about 50 percent of the income will be placed into marketing.

If the referendum is approved, state sheep and wool grower organizations would receive 20 percent of the collected checkoff funds compared to the 10 percent now received under the phased-out Wool Act.

Passage of the referendum would create a National Sheep Promotion, Research, and Information Board whose members will be nominated by certified state organizations and appointed by the U.S. secretary of agriculture. The board will be made up of 85 producers, 10 feeders, and 25 importers. Pennsylvania will be entitled to one member on this board, according to Mawhinney.

SCC To Review

carried out by the local conservation districts, which have a historic reputation for good relations with the farm community, unlike DER.

Under the current administration, DER has been undergoing a realignment of approach to protecting the environment. Instead of just saying, "No," to landowners and entrepreneurs seeking to alter local environs in order to create business, the agency policy is now to say, "How may I help you comply with regulations?"

The Nutrient Management Advisory Board consists of representatives mostly from agriculture and agribusiness, along with a representative of the general citizenry, the lending industry, and environmental concerns, such as the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

For more than 18 months, the board has worked to create a set of regulations to recommend to the board.

The effort is considered to be an example of the concept behind the "Reg-Neg" type of negotiated regulation-making.

This type of effort attempts to curb public outcry after regulations have been proposed by including the to-be regulated community early in the process.

The goal of nutrient management is to prevent the uncontrolled flow of nutrients into surface and groundwaters.

The problem is yet to be fully identified, but the symptom has been increasingly degraded water quality throughout the Susquehanna River and in many streams and aquifers throughout the state because of over-nutrification.

As a first approach, the law was designed to address the production agriculture sector.

This was done because of growing concern over local municipalities creating ordinances limiting farmers' application of manure to fields.

However, the core reason behind local governments getting involved in nutrient management has been two phenomena related to the increased demands on the land and waters of the state by a growing human population: the huge surge in the urbanization of traditional farm, field and forestland; and the advent of super-sized contract livestock production facilities on limited land.

The first phenomenon created a situation in which all livestock producers and those applying manure to their fields became surrounded by people with no or little exposure to the actual conditions of production agriculture.

The result has been intolerance of normal agricultural practices by local government officials, who either are, or were pressured by, recently urbanized commuters living in residential developments built on former farms in farming country.

Local ordinances carried varying degrees of local government intrusion into farming operations.

Further, many farms operate in several different municipalities and were becoming subject to a variety of regulations, depending on where political boundaries cross fields.

The second phenomenon — the concentrated production facility — has created a rapid departure from the traditional ratio of manure production-to-acre on farms.

This has been caused because of low commodity prices, which some blame on government food policies, and the application of "industrial" techniques and attitudes to raising livestock.

The competitive demands on livestock production favors higher production with lower overhead.

With no controls on manure handling, large production facilities have been built on properties with insufficient acreage to allow plants to use the nutrients adequately on site.

Further, with less and less cropland available locally to raise feeds for the increased livestock populations, and land prices having skyrocketed because of the first phenomenon, it has become more competitive for some large livestock producers to import forages and feeds.

Nutrients contained in feeds which livestock don't utilize are passed on through manure.

In operations which import the majority of livestock nutrients through purchased feeds, the nutrients leave the farm in one of three ways — through the environment, through the sale of crops raised using the manure from the livestock, and through the export of the livestock.

This is a situation used by those who argue for something called, "sustainable agriculture," though some of the initial concepts promoted by those who support "sustainable agriculture" seemed removed from the practicalilities of profitable agriculture.

The Nutrient Management Act defines agricultural operations which are out of balance between the amounts of nutrients manipulated on the farm and the amount of cropland suitable for its application as "Concentrated Animal Operations."

For ease of understanding, the law sets a cap on stocking rate of 2,000 pounds liveweight per acre, on average, per year, as the threshhold level before being required to develop a nutrient management plan.

However, the Nutrient Management Act allows for any size operation and any density of livestock, as long as a plan is developed to bring the operation within a close balance between nutrients and land.

That calculation does not include farm residential land, but the amount of land to which manure and other plant nutrients can be safely applied.

The Nutrient Management Act and its framers wanted to be certain that concern for responsible nutrient management didn't end with government regulating just the production agriculture community.

It does allow for expanding the scope of the law to include other sources of nutrients, such as residential on-lot underground septic systems, non-agricultural operations that use nutrients to grow grasses, for example, for recreational or aesthetic activities, such as golf.

The packet of regulations that the state Conservation Commission is to review in June addresses production agriculture, except for a last minute attempt by some advisory board members to get those who board horses included.

It was argued that some horse-boarding operations seem to have much more than 2,000 pounds of horse per acre per year, and thus represented an "animal operation" if not exactly a production agriculture operation.

It was suggested that production agriculture farmers may become upset if they see neighbors with horses not being subject to the same types of government oversight.

As a result, board members present at the April meeting created a definition in the recommended regulations with the intent to include those who board horses, though if it were to remain, could probably equally apply to dog kennels, mink ranches, pet shops, etc.

However, the commission staff advised the board that its attempt to include those who board horses by attempting to change the scope of the law through regulations would probably be ruled illegal.

Nevertheless, the board approved the package. It was said by several board members, that due to the overall agreement on the majority of recommended regulations, the completeness of the package, and the time restraints

Lamb And Wool Checkoff

"A self-help checkoff program is an opportunity our industry has to continue promotion of our products and to secure economic viability," wrote Mawhinney.

But work being undertaken by ASI's headquarters in Englewood, Colo. and by lobbyists in Washington, D.C. is helping to solidify a working program, according to the sheep producer.

She indicated that the organization needs combined contributions to stave off the importers, who are "right there, sitting on the doorstep" of many producers, she said. As a result, more effort is being undertaken by ASI to include the needs of the producers on the 1995 Farm Bill.

Vogel said that the producers east of the Mississippi River account for most of the total sheep producers in the nation. Forty percent of the lambs sold in the country are sold in the Northeast.

SCRAPE, DIG, PULL, LOAD, MOW AND MORE

Estate owners, landscapers and farmers will appreciate the Kubota B-50 Series' wide choice of handy implements.

These include mid and rear mount mowers, front loaders, boxscrapers, backhoes, posthole diggers, snowblowers, even rotary tillers.

Kubota's remarkable B-50 Series compact tractors come with mid and 2-speed rear PTO. Optional Hydrostatic transmission. From 17-24 HP.

Kubota's optional "Bi-Speed Turn" system allows smaller and precise turns in 4-Wheel Drive, which makes mowing, and even loading more efficient.

The Kubota B-50 Series. Versatile compact tractors.

Pa.DHIA Announces New Directors

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Two people who recently were elected to serve their districts as state directors took their seats with the other 16 board members on April 26.

The new directors are, from District 6, William Itle, of Valewood Farm, in Loretto, Cambria County, and from District 14, Mark Eby, of Mount-Top-Vue Farm, in Canton, Sullivan County.

William Itle

Mark Eby

William Itle

Itle's district includes Somerset and Cambria counties. He previously served as a Pa.DHIA state director from 1986 to 1992.

The Valewood Dairy consists of 600 acres with a milking herd of about 160 registered Holsteins, and 120 replacement heifers. The rolling herd average at the end of September last year was 20,866 pounds of milk, 786 pounds butterfat, and 680 pounds of protein.

The dairy is a family corporation and produces, processes and distributes milk. William and wife Joyce have three children, Carissa, 20, Cortney, 18, and Lindsey, 15.

"Grandpap started with Pa.DHIA in the 40s and we've been there every since," he said. "Without the current management information, we could not operate."

In addition to the dairy operation and his DHIA responsibilities, William also volunteers service for the local high school's junior achievement program, as well as serving as a director on the board of the Cambria County Mutual Insurance Company.

Mark Eby

Mark Eby's Mount-Top-Vue Farm herd consists of about 80 Holsteins, registered and grade, that lead Sullivan County for production last year with an average of 26,095 pounds milk, 1,119 pounds butterfat, and 814 pounds of protein. His herd has been on test for 12 years.

He and his wife Loretta purchased their 250-acre farm in 1991 and two children, Laura, 5, and Krista, 1.

Mark was originally born in Lancaster County and moved as a child with his family to Sullivan County. In 1983, he went into partnership with his father, and now has taken over the farm.

As director for District 14, he represents DHIA members in Columbia, Lackawanna, Lycoming, Luzerne, and Wyoming counties, in addition to his home county.

He is currently president of the Sullivan County DHIA Committee, and has served as vice president of the Sullivan County Extension Board of Directors.

In other community leadership positions, he is an elder in the New Life Church.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

facing the commission to propose a package of regulations, that the board should recommend what it had, and allow the governmental and public review processes to give final form to the regulations.

Since the April meeting, commission staff has been putting final touches on the board's recommended package (printing a legible package of the board-recommended regulations), and also circulating them among various review agencies in order to come up with further recommendations that address legal concerns.

As of this week, that staff review was not yet completed, but according to a letter mailed this week from Mike Krempasky, executive secretary of the state Conservation Commission, to advisory board members, the "... staff expects to recommend only two changes to the commission."

According to letter, the first change has been suggested by DER Secretary Jim Seif. His suggestion is to shorten review times for voluntary nutrient management plans, so as to encourage voluntary planning.

The second recommendation concerns the advisory board's recommendation for a definition for "farming resources" that who include those who board horses to fall under the law.

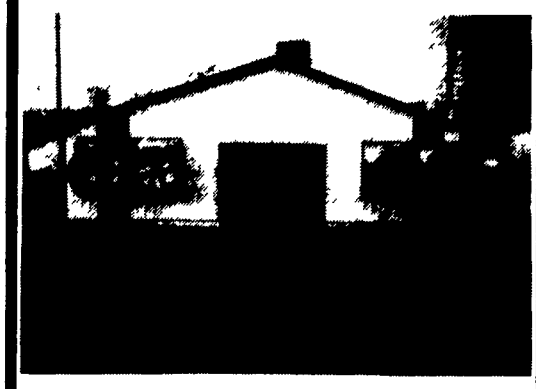
Breeze Master



126 Cow Free Stall Barn - Quarryville, PA

Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!
At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:

- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone

DEUTZ FAHR

Round Balers

DEUTZ FAHR
GREENLAND

Quality Equipment To Preserve Quality Crops.

Here Are Just A Few Reasons Why....

Standard Equipment on all Balers include:

- Hydraulically controlled pickup with dual pneumatic gauge wheels, baffle plate and galvanized scrapers.
- Efficient pickup tine spacing and open throat design to gently handle even large windrows without plugging.
- Internally re-enforced ribbed profile rollers, (17 on GP230, 22 on GP250) are designed to eliminate wedging and wrapping in wet crops, and reduce leaf loss in dry material. Ribbed profile rollers are less aggressive than large "dimpled" sheets.
- Driven roller shafts are splined, not keyed, for long life. No external chains and rollers bearings to replace either!
- Extra sturdy fixed chamber design:
  GP230 makes 4x4 bales
  GP250 makes 4x5 bales
- Central control, tractor mounted "Pilot Box" for electronic and hydraulic functions with both audible and visual indications.
- Single acting hydraulic remote is all that's needed for all hydraulic functions.
- Automatic chain lubrication system.
- Fully automatic "twin-fix" twine tying system, the fastest in the industry. (14 seconds!)
  (Optional net wrap attachment can be added any time)
- Bale ejector with extendable ramps.
- Safety light package.
- Wide angle PTO shaft.
- Wide, heavy ply tires.

"Opticut" models available to increase high moisture bale density and bale feedability.

DVC Draws More Than 25,000 To A-Day

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.)—Despite a daylong battle with the forces of mother nature, Delaware Valley College's 47th Annual A-Day attracted more than 25,000 people to the Doylestown campus recently.

A-Day has been a long standing tradition in Bucks County. Flower and craft shows, science exhibits, food, hayrides, pony rides and horse shows were just a few of the attractions which have drawn so many from across the Delaware Valley.

Christopher S. Beadling, director of public relations for the college, said, "A-Day provides our students the opportunity to showcase the hands-on side of learning they use here every day while providing a valuable service to the Central Bucks community."

All A-Day activities were planned, prepared and presented by members of the student body. James Koontz, the chairman of the A-Day committee, said, "I'm glad that everyone who came to this year's event had so many opportunities to see what our students can do. For me, the smiles I saw on the children's faces were enough proof everything had been a success."

One of the highlights of the weekend was the crowning of seniors Edward Wolford of Lehighton and Jennifer Reynolds of Mays Landing, N.J. as the A-Day king and queen.

Quarryville Growers' Market Opens May 27

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The "Quarryville Growers' Market," featuring farm-fresh produce grown on local farms, will open Saturday, May 27.

The new market is located at the intersection of routes 222 and 372 at the "Goods Store" parking lot in Quarryville.

Market hours for the season are from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Saturday from Memorial Weekend through the end of the growing season in November.

In season, farm-fresh produce available at the market will include vegetables and fruits as well as new and unusual varieties. Herbs, cut flowers, strawberries, honey, and baked goods will also be featured.

Growers' markets provide consumers with quality, regionally grown produce while giving farmers a viable outlet for marketing their products. While some farmers' markets include products that are not locally grown, growers' markets feature only products from local farms.

For more details about the market contact, market managers Paul or Carol Hauser at (610) 869-2791.

Goat Educational Meeting

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — People interested in dairy goats are invited to attend an educational meeting at 7.30 p.m. on Thursday, June 1, in the basement of the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Joy Goode, a veterinarian from the Strasburg area, will address health and veterinary concerns. Feeds and feeding practices will be discussed by Nevin Gish of McCracken's Feed Mill in Manheim. Rick and Denise Goss of Red Gate Farm in Palmyra will focus on herd management as they share some of their goat managing experience. Lancaster Extension Agent, Glenn Shirk will talk about pastures and Jacob Fisher, of Windy Hill Goat Dairy in Manheim, will have a display of goat publications and information.

The meeting is open to the public the features found most useful to farmers, and allows for more economical shipping to help extend the company's distribution.

"We started out trying to give farmers the advantages of precision farming," said Stoltzfus. It is a vision that hasn't changed in 50 years. "Today the possibilities of satellite technology fascinate me. You can have the global positioning satellites tell you exactly where you are in a field. That lets you control fertilizer amounts to an amazingly accurate degree by eliminating overlap. I believe that computer controlled spreading will soon be very common. There's also radar technology that will let you apply accurate amounts regardless of ground speed. When you can connect such a technology to the positioning satellite, you'll be able to spread in the dark."

When C. U. and Ruth do take time to look back over their 50 years together in agricultural business, they do so with deep gratitude. Ruth says, "In all we want to thank the Lord for being so good to us." Says C. U., "It makes you feel good to have made a contribution to agriculture. You're helping to feed the world."

or gaining less than adequately to ensure good reproductive performance. Often feed cost savings can be realized by changing the composition of the grain mix rather than simply decreasing quantity fed.

One last thought: Remember many factors contribute to your bottom line, and short-term savings in feed costs may translate into long-term expense if cow health, reproductive efficiency, and milk production suffer.

Questions and comments should be directed to the Grazing Research and Education Center, 116 Agr. Sci. Industry, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-6541.

Scout Corn For Cutworm Damage

ROBERT J. ANDERSON
Lancaster Extension Agent

When corn emerges, the first insect to be looking for is the black cutworm. The cutworm larvae usually begins feeding about mid-May in Lancaster County. The black cutworm will damage plants by cutting either above or below the soil surface or by tunneling into the plant.

Soil conditions usually influence where the larvae will feed. Under dry conditions, the feeding is normally below ground level. Under moist conditions, the feeding is usually above ground level.

The corn fields with the highest risk of damage from the cutworm are those that had weeds in them within seven days of planting. Very little cutting should be expected in fields which were tilled or weed-free for eight or more days before planting except those adjacent to other fields which were not clean of all vegetation for the eight-day period. The eight-day period allows the plant material in the field to dry and become inedible for the larvae causing them to starve before the corn emerges.

The economic threshold for the black cutworm in Pennsylvania is 3 percent of the plants cut off or more than five cutworms per 100 plants. Several other thresholds which I have looked at for the control of the cutworm also include the size of the cutworm.

As the size of the larva increases, the number of plants cut off also increases. However, it never exceeds 5 percent. Therefore, following the Pennsylvania guideline of 3 percent should be adequate in protecting the crop.

In many fields, growers attempt to control both the rootworm and cutworm with a planter application of an insecticide. This will control most of the cutworms. However, scouting should not be neglected in case the planter application fails to control the cutworms.

Under dry conditions, the effectiveness of Lorsban as a rescue treatment can be improved with the use of rotary hoe to slightly incorporate the material into the soil where the larvae is living, according to Dr. M.E. Rice in Iowa. However, if one of the pyrethroids insecticides such as Ambush, Asana, or Pounce is used, they should not be incorporated.

If tires are to operate for any length of time on roads or other hard surfaces and the draft load is not great, it is advisable to increase the pressure in the tire to the maximum recommendation in order to reduce the movement of the tread bars that causes excessive wiping action.

Farm Women Sing, Smile, Pray At 30th Spring Rally

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — About 870 Society of Farm Women members packed the Dickinson College dining hall for a day-long Spring Rally on Tuesday.

Perky pink petunias at each place setting combined with white linen tablecloths, pink cloth napkins, and gaily wrapped pink presents scattered across the stage accented the pink and white color scheme of the day. Even the group's organizers dressed in shades of pink.

"Sing and Smile and Pray On a Day in May," was the theme of the 30th Spring Rally.

The program was packed with plenty of talent from Society members and a performance by Miss Pennsylvania Kirstin Border, who played the violin and told about her reign.

Border, a native of Glen Rock, said, "The key to excellence lies in commitment.

"Have a dream no matter how crazy," she said. "But reaching and achieving goals depends on commitment. Finish what you start."

She told of her own commitment to win the Miss Pennsylvania crown after entering three years. "I was kicked down two times before winning it on the third try," she said. "I treasure this year more, having met defeat before winning."

Border, who has two courses to complete before receiving a master's degree in advertising, is proud that she is the most educated women to become Miss Pennsylvania. She chose to run for the title for the scholarship money offered and the opportunities to hone and practice interview skills.

Lois Erb, a former state president of the Society, addressed the group during the morning session.

Her topic, "A Penny for Your Thoughts," referred to "the mind as the biggest battleground in the world."

She presented a list of questions to help women examine the battles they need to fight in their minds.

"The weapons of warfare are not carnal but mighty," she said as she quoted biblical scriptures to offer strategies to conquer mind battles.

Afternoon speaker Joan Hershey, also a Farm Women member, presented "A Sure Formula for Happiness." She encouraged women to consider that "every day you're alive is a special occasion."

She presented seven aspects of a hurried home to help women to learn to focus on enjoying each moment.

"Focus on the mountain mover instead of the mountain," she said.

Musical entertainment was provided by Paula Kretchman during the morning session and by a pianist and trio of Farm Women members during the afternoon session.

Society 5 members Mary Emrick and Sandra Yocum said that they sang together 30 years ago, then gave it up while raising a family. Recently they began performing together again with the help of pianist Torie Hostetter and Kathryn Fry of Society 27.

Martee Mentzer of Cumberland County provided lots of laughs with her repertoire of "chicken jokes" while emceeing the rally.

The Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania was organized in 1914 to contribute to the power and influence of the farm home, to contribute to the community activity of farm women, to develop leadership, and to promote better living and working conditions in the farm homes of Pennsylvania.

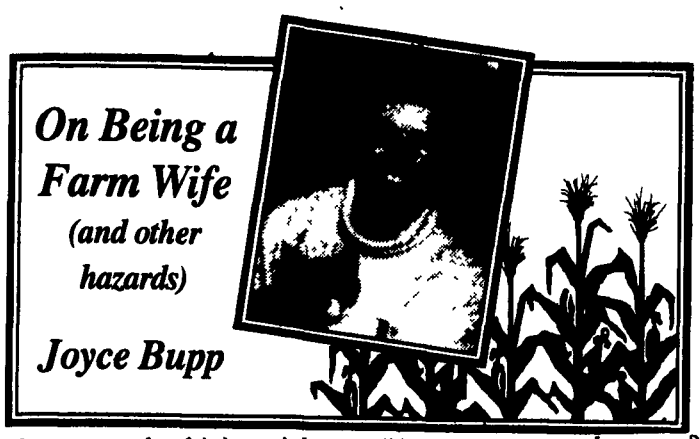
HOMESTEAD NOTES



My worst solo driving nightmares: a flat tire on a lonely stretch of highway, after dark; a broken fan belt crossing a rundown urban area, after dark; a car that simply refuses to start in an airport parking lot an hour away from home. After dark.

"Please car, don't do this to me," I pleaded to my car, parked in the Baltimore-Washington International airport's parking lot. It was after 10 p.m.; a drizzle had started to fall as I'd hopped off the parking lot bus on the last leg of a trip home from a dairy meeting.

My life is heavily dependent on two major pieces of "working equipment" — a car and a computer. And I am basically clueless as to how to make the simplest repair on either.

But this was probably not the battery, since there were lights and ignition turnover, just no engine startup. Nevertheless, a helpful gentlemen pulled his car up to mine and proceeded to hook up a set of jumper cables. At least I had a working flashlight. As feared, the old standby jumpstart . . . did not.

"It's probably electronic," I sighed. Just two months before, a similar incident had occurred. But then the car was sitting in our garage and just a few miles from a good friend's family towing service. An electronic-system "map sensor" had failed. Whatever that is.

"Are you sure you have gas?" chuckled my good Samaritan, in a somewhat predictabie male-to-female, automotive-problem query. I overlooked that when he generously offered use of his cellular phone to call home and beg The Farmer to come rescue me.

Next morning, The Farmer picked up another electronic part he thought might be the problem and we made the hour-long drive back.

"Try it," he said, after a few minutes under the hood. I did. It didn't. The control panel just kept demanding "check engine," in an indignant square of glow-red-orange color.

Accustomed to being able to repair — or at least make run enough to get to the shop — most anything with a motor, The Farmer has become increasingly frustrated with the "progress" of electronics in equipment. Sensors, under-the-hood computers and electronic monitors that scream "Error! Error! Error!" when something goes wrong don't cut it for our mechanic-magician with electrical tape and vise grips.

However, he doesn't give up easily and kept experimenting with wires and fuses and miscellaneous little electronic hookups. My excitement grew when for the umpteenth time I turned the key and the "check engine" light didn't come on.

"I need a piece of wire," he wished, glancing around the bare parking lot. Inspiration hit when I remembered the spotlight was in the trunk. Slicing off a section of its wire, he bypassed the electronic blockade.

The car started right up and ran perfectly on the way home. Ultimate diagnosis was a deceased computer. Four days passed before the dealer could look at it — and four more before a replacement was shipped.

Generally not one to long for the "good ol' days," some days I'd like to regress from progress in the mandatory electronic-equipment trend of the times.

After all, if we can bypass a car's new, improved, electronics system with a section of spotlight wire and it runs great, why do we need that computer under the hood to mess it up?

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Society of Farm Women No. 8 met on May 10. Members toured the Christ's Home for Children in Paradise and then returned to the home of Evelyn Russell in Ronks for their meeting. Gladys Ney gave devotions and hostesses were Mildred Hurst, Arlene Witman, and Evelyn Russell. The June 14 meeting will be at Grace Heilbron's farm in Marietta and the members will have a bakeless bake sale.

York Society 26

Twelve members of Society of Farm Women York County Group 26 celebrated their 29th anniversary with a trip to Vanity Fair in Reading.

The group was organized in May 1966. Ruth Hake served as the first president. Charter members still in the group are Athena Beshore, Mary Conley, Catherine Dorwart, Ruth Hake and Shirley Miller. Louise Pennay is an associate member.

The June meeting will be held at Paddletown Church on June 13. Group 20 will be entertained at this time.

Berks Society 6

The April meeting of The Berks County Farm Women Group #6 met at the home of Naomi Mest, Oley. The guest speaker was Pastor Bruce Patteiger of Christ Lutheran Church of Dryville. He showed slides and talked about the trip he and members of his church took to the Lutheran Navajo Mission in Arizona.

The May meeting was an Everybody's Birthday Party held at the Pleasantville Diner. Poems were read by Dorothy Wagner and Joyce Mast. Birthday gifts were exchai ,ed and door prizes were handed out.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Karen Hoffman, Oley.

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women Executive Board met recently with 20 members in attendance. President, Wendy Lingle, opened the meeting.

Devotions were led by Lillian Bucks of Group #3.

For roll call, members stated if their gardens or flower beds were ready for the season.

A note was received from Martee Mentzer, chairman of the Farm Women Spring Rally, which will be held on Tuesday, May 23rd, at Dickinson College. She stated that Miss Pennsylvania, Kirsten Border, will be a guest speaker. Approximately 62 Berks County women will attend the Rally.

Janet Schlegel gave an agribusiness report. Agricultural night at the Reading Phillies, cosponsored by the Reading Phillies, the Farm City Council and the Berks Southeast Cattlemen's Association, is slated for June 19. She also reported that new agriculture brochures will be printed for distribution shortly.

Berks County Farm Women groups are donating to the Berks County Dairy Farmer's Association to help pay for the Dairy Princess Pageant.

All groups are asked to give a donation to the state project—Ag Awareness. A workshop for teachers will be held at Penn State July 23-28. Several Berks County teachers are interested in attending, and they, in turn, would go back to the classroom and teach their students about ag awareness.

Dorothy Lutz, County Convention chairlady, reported that the Co. nty Convention will be held on Saturday, October 7 at the Ag. Center, Leesport. An auction will be held as well as a Silent Auction. Groups were assigned their duties at the Convention.

New by-law books were distributed to each group.

The next meeting will be held on July 10 in the conference room of the Ag Center.

Well the end-of-school, beginning-of-summer rat-race is upon us! And this is supposed to be fun, right? Well, I hope that you are taking time during this holiday weekend to spend time with your family and to honor servicemen who gave their time and their lives for our country.

But if instead you find yourself rushing—to multiple baseball games, gatherings, meetings, and errands—you are not alone. Just because you're not alone, doesn't mean you don't deserve some relief. Here are several ideas that you may want to try. I borrowed them from some of the "Earth Day" literature—reduce and recycle.

Reduce the amount of things on your schedule. Say to yourself and your family, "Everything is not going to get done." Period. Make some choices. Also, train yourself to reduce clutter in your lives before it accumulates. If you know you're not visiting a resort this summer and you don't need another credit card, you can discard (or recycle) a lot of junk mail without even opening it. Review the summer playground, camp and festival opportunities. Which ones will you do? Which ones will you say "No" to?

You can also reduce clutter by running a 15-minute pick-up drill with your family. Assign each person to one room. For 15 minutes, you all scurry to straighten up, store away or throw away, wipe down, and spruce up a room. It's amazing what people can do when the clock's ticking. Promise to take a break after 15 minutes to survey the results.

Reduce you expectations for what a clean house is, what a family reunion should be, what a graduation party consists of. Make them realistic pictures that you and your family can accomplish. And then remember that you should not be pulling off the show on your own. Who else can help. If people offer to help, "What can I bring/do?" be prepared with a list of possibilities. Don't say, "Oh, nothing, just bring yourself." Ask you family to play an active role in "covering" responsibilities. Can an older teen go to a younger child's ball game instead of you? Can your father phone in an order to the bake shop or pick up a graduation gift that just arrived at the store?

Think about the time you spend in travel, at meetings, and in idle conversation. Can these be reduced? How? Continually ask, "What would happen if we didn't hold that meeting?" "Can I pick up those things on my way to the mall tomorrow instead of making an additional trip today?" "Doesn't my son drive by that shop every day on the way home?" We can come up with lots of ways to reduce the time spent in these areas.

Also learn to "recycle" things. If you're cooking pasta, cook a huge batch at one time and use it for several meals. This saves time in the long run. You can do the same thing for ground beef, chicken breasts, rice, and potatoes. Think of multiple uses for the food you spend time preparing. Also reuse other things that take time. Did your granddaughter make you a cute centerpiece for Easter at daycare? Maybe you can reuse that idea for a Mother-Daughter banquet you have to plan. Did you do something at work that can be used at your civic meeting? By multiplying the times you use the things you create/make, you stretch your efforts to accomplish more.

When all the other steps for juggling fail, ask yourself before making a choice about your time..."What will this matter three months from now or five years from now?" Some actions will greatly influence the future. Some will have little impact. The answer to that question will help you make good decisions.

Auction To Benefit Birth Center

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.)—Birth Care & Family Health Services will hold its Third Annual Benefit Auction on Saturday, June 3, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hoffman Building, Solanco Fairground, Route 472 So., Quarryville, PA. Located in the heart of Lancaster County farmland, Birth Care is Pennsylvania's first non-profit birth and health care center, founded in 1978. Outdoor gardening can be therapeutic for the healthy or the disabled. The simple activity of weeding can strengthen people physically as well as mentally. One of the most poignant memories of my childhood is helping elderly neighbors weed and tend to their garden chores. Laboring together in the sun-warmed dirt brought not just the rewards of more exercise but the larger lessons of how to care for living things.

I've learned too that for many "older" gardeners physical limitation does not mean abandoning the garden. Healthy gardening means experiencing the pleasant garden sensations of smell, sight, touch, taste and often sound. Here are suggestions provided by a book entitled: "Backyards and Butterflies: Ways to Include Children with Disabilities in Outdoor Activities" by Doreen Greenstein.

The key to making gardens accessible to all ages with or without a handicap is organizing the space to mesh with the physical limitations of the gardener. Proximity to the house — so it's easy to get to and fro — is the first consideration. Integrating the plot with the rest of the family garden, so everybody can work together, is the second.

For adults and children who use wheelchairs, make a path that leads to the garden and to wherever tools are stored. It should be at least 36 inches wide. A 60-inch in diameter space is needed for wheelchair turn-arounds. Form the path with two rows of scrap lumber (spacing the rows to match the distance between the wheels of the chair) or with plywood sheets, conveyor belting, or any material that provides a smooth surface.

The traditional raised bed — where soil is built up inside a wooden frame (often made from stacks of railroad ties) — can offer additional reach to those in wheelchairs. For others, elevating the garden to waist level works best. A homemade planting table, which allows a wheelchair to slide underneath the table, makes it comfortable to work the soil in a seated position. Seeds or seedlings are planted in large plastic dish pans with holes drilled for drainage. Purchase extra large pans at restaurant supply stores.

Five-gallon plastic food storage buckets hung from the sides of the planting table (again with holes drilled for drainage) make ideal containers for growing herbs. Cover protruding nails with a slit tennis ball.

Smaller raised beds made of stacks of tires bolted together, even window boxes attached to a porch or deck railing, make workable miniature gardens. Old wooden barrels can be used to grow strawberries, tomatoes, and vine crops. Vegetables can also be grown in plastic trash bags set out on an old picnic table or bench.

Choose plants carefully for maximum success. Consider the size of seeds or transplants (big ones are easier for weak hands to manage) as well as the garden's location. Seed tape is easier to handle for lettuce and other vegetables where the loose seeds are fine.

Check varieties. Certain ones do better in containers; ask for recommendations at your local nursery or county extension office. Dwarf fruit trees can be pruned or trellised so the fruit is within easy reach. Vining varieties also make for easier picking. Of course, avoid all poisonous plants, particularly those with toxic substances in the flowers.

Those who are vision impaired often enjoy fragrant plants including aromatic herbs and flowers Consider texture, too. There's a remarkable diversity in feel of leaf and stalk.

Toting tools around is a hassle. Bags and buckets of various shapes, sizes, and materials can be attached by Velcro to a wheelchair or walker, keeping paraphernalia easily within reach.

Grilling Recipes

Hats off to summer, backyard chefs who are looking for hearty but simple food, easy clean-up and extra time for enjoying life.

Lean and meaty American lamb, boneless chicken, pork the other white meat, and juicy steaks — all taste better grilled. Add grilled veggies and even grilled desserts for the perfect backyard barbecue.

Happy grilling!

LAMB CHOP WITH PARMESAN

6 lamb chops (about ¾ -inch thick)
¼ cup shredded parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons soft butter
Salt and pepper to taste

Grill chops 5-6-inches from medium-hot coals for 6 to 8 minutes. Turn and broil 4 to 5 minutes or until desired doneness.

Blend remaining ingredients; spread on chops. Broil 1-2 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

GRILLED VEGGIES #1

1-inch cubed potatoes
1-inch cubed sweet potatoes
1-inch cubed zucchini
1-inch pieces peppers (red and green)
Small mushrooms
Small tomatoes
Small onions
Salt, pepper and butter to taste

Placed desired veggies on a skewer, brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place on grill, turn until veggies are done.

Veggies may be sprayed with butter-flavored non-stick spray or olive oil spray for those on restricted diets.

Lebanon

GRILLED VEGGIES #2

Melted butter
½ -¾ -inch slices potatoes, sweet potatoes, zuchini, and onions
Medium to large size mushrooms
Salt and pepper to taste

Dip veggies into butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Place on grill and turn every 5-7 minutes or until done. Serve along with grilled meat.

Veggies may be sprayed with butter-flavored non-stick spray or olive oil spray for those on restricted diets.

GRILLED STEAK CAESAR SANDWICH

1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup Caesar dressing
½ -inch beef rib, ribeye roll steaks
Salt and pepper to taste
Garlic to taste
Submarine rolls, split
Romaine lettuce leaves
Tomato slices
Avocado slices

In bowl, mix mayonnaise and Caesar dressing until thoroughly blended. Cover and refrigerate. Yields 1½ cups.

In bowl, combine salt, pepper, and garlic. Mix thoroughly. Season both sides of each steak with garlic mixture. Place in utility pan; cover and refrigerate until ready to grill.

Grill steak to desired doneness. Spread 1 tablespoon Caesar mayonnaise on each cut side of one roll. Top bottom roll half with 2 lettuce leaves, 3 tomato slices, grilled steak and 3 avocado slices. Cover with top of roll.

Last Chance To Enter Cow Mania Drawing

Lancaster Farming is holding a Cow Mania Drawing. To be eligible to win one of the collectible cow items offered, send a recipe using at least one dairy product as a sizeable ingredient.

The recipe may be for an appetizer, dip, soup, bread, main dish, vegetable, dessert, beverage, snack or salad. It must include at least one of the following ingredients: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, ice cream, cottage cheese, ricotta cheese, cream cheese, or any hard or soft cheese.

Do not send recipes using margarine or non-dairy substitutes.

Clearly print or type your recipe. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use.

Be sure to include your name, full address, and phone number on the recipe. Please include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, we'd like a picture of you or your family to include with the recipe when it is printed during June Dairy Month. Photos will be returned if you mark your name and address on the back of the photo.

This is a popular annual event for our readers who not only enjoy the recipes but also reading tidbits of information about the person who submits the recipe.

Send your recipe, accompanying information, and photo to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Cow Mania Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522.

Only one recipe per family. Send it immediately as the deadline for entries to reach us is June 1.

GRILLED MARINATED CHICKEN

3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons low-fat mayonnaise
Sugar substitute to equal ¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
6 chicken breast halves, skinned

Combine the first six ingredients, stirring until well blended, pour over chicken in a shallow container, turning chicken to coat each side. Cover container and marinate in refrigerator at least one hour.

Remove chicken from marinade. Grill over hot coals 45 minutes or until chicken is done. Turn and baste every 10 minutes with marinade. Yields 6 servings.

GRILLED DONUT HOLES

Cut refrigerator biscuits from a tube into thirds and roll each piece into a ball. String on skewers, leaving about ½ -inch between ball. Bake over hot coal, turning constantly until browned and completely done about 7 minutes. At once, push off skewers into melted butter and into cinnamon-super mixture. Eat immediately. One tube of refrigerated biscuits makes 30.

Featured Recipe

Mary Louise Lever of Rome, Georgia, won $25,000 for her recipe Baked Spicy Pineapple Balinesse Chicken at the 41st National Chicken Cooking Contest held April 28 in Atlanta.

Cooks from each of the 50 states plus the District of Columbia competed by cooking their special chicken dish.

All 50 recipes from the contest plus recipes from the host state of Georgia, and award winning recipes from past NCCC winners are available in a 128-page Chicken Cookbook. In addition to recipes, the cookbook contains nutrition information, guides on buying and handling chicken, chicken cooking tips and information on how to enter the contest to be held in South Carolina next year.

The Chicken Cookbook can be ordered at the special price of $2 (including postage) by sending a check or money order (no cash) to Chicken Cookbook, Department NBC, Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

BAKED SPICY PINEAPPLE BALINESE CHICKEN

4 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
½ cup gingersnap crumbs
Spicy Pineapple Sauce: recipe follows
Red bell pepper strips
Basil sprigs

Between two sheets plastic wrap, place chicken and gently pound to uniform thickness; brush with mustard. In shallow dish, place gingersnap crumbs. Add chicken, one piece at a time, dredging to coat. In non-stick sprayed shallow baking dish, place chicken and refrigerate 20 minutes. Place chicken in 350 degree oven and bake about 20 minutes or until juices run clear and a fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. On four individual plates, spoon ¼ of Spicy Pineapple Sauce and top each with a chicken breast half. Garnish with pepper strips and basil sprigs. Makes 4 servings.

Spicy Pineapple Sauce: In frypan, place 1 tablespoon peanut oil and heat to medium temperature. Add 1 minced garlice clove and 1 red onion, chopped. Saute about 2 minutes. Stir in ¼ cup seasoned rice vinegar and 1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple, juice included. Add ¼ teaspoon allspice, ¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes and 2½ teaspoons Dijon mustard. Heat, stirring, about 4 minutes or until bubbly and slightly thickened. In blender container, place pineapple mixture and puree until smooth; keep warm. Just before serving, stir in 2 tablespoons finely chopped basil and ¼ cup diced red bell pepper.

BUTTERMILK MARINATED KABOBS

Marinade:
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried basil
½ teaspoon dried marjoram
2 cups buttermilk

Kabobs:
2 pounds round steak, cut into 2-inch squares (24 pieces)
3 onions, cut into 8 pieces each
24 1-inch thick slices zucchini
12 cherry tomatoes
6 large mushrooms, halved

For marinade: Combine brown sugar, lemon juice, Worcestershire, salt and herbs. Stir in buttermilk. Add meat; cover and marinate in refrigerator a minimum of 12 hours.

For kabobs: Parboil onions in boiling salted water to cover, 6 to 8 minutes; rinse in cold water and drain.

To assemble: Alternate pieces of meat with onions, zucchini, tomatoes, and mushrooms on each skewer. Grill over hot coals until meat reaches desired degree of doneness. Allow approximately 15 minutes for medium cooked meat.

HONEY-GARLIC AMERICA'S CUT

4 America's Cut boneless center pork loin chops
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry
2 cloves garlic, minced

Combine marinade ingredients and pour over chops in heavy plastic bag. Seal. Refrigerate 4-24 hours. Prepare covered grill with drip pan in center banked by medium-hot coals. Remove chops from marinade, reserve marinade. Grill chops 12-15 minutes, turning once, and basting occasionally with reserved marinade.

Nat. Pork Council

CAROLINA PORK BARBECUE

4-5 pound boneless pork shoulder
1 quart cider vinegar
1 to 1½ ounces crushed red pepper
1 tablespoon black pepper

Stir together vinegar and peppers. Prepare medium-hot coals in covered grill, banking coals when hot. Position drip pan in center of grill bed, between banks of coals. Place pork on grill over drip pan, close hood. Cook for 2½ -3½ hours, basting frequently with vinegar marinade, until pork is very tender. Remove pork from grill, cool slightly; chop meat and serve with hush puppies and cole slaw, if desired.

ORANGE FESTIVAL CHICKEN

1 cup orange juice
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup olive oil
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1½ teaspoon garlic powder
1½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 to 1½ -pounds chicken pieces
Orange slices (optional)

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients except for chicken and orange slices; mix well. Add chicken, cover and marinate in refrigerator for at least two hours. Place chicken on grill over medium-hot coals. Grill, basting occasionally with marinade and turning often, for about 20 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink. Discard only remaining marinade. Garnish with orange slices if desired. Makes 4 servings.

HONEY MUSTARD-GLAZED STEAKS WITH GRILLED ONIONS

⅓ cup Dijon-style mustard
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1½ tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1 tablespoon water
¼ teaspoon hot red pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon coarse grind black pepper
2 well-trimmed boneless beef top loin steaks, cut 1-inch thick
1 large onion, cut into ½ -inch slices

Combine mustard, parsley, honey, vinegar, water, pepper sauce and pepper. Place beef top loin steaks and onions on grid over medium coals; brush both sides liberally with glaze. Grill steaks and onions 15 to 20 minutes for rare to medium or to desired doneness, turning once again and brushing with glaze.

Beef Council

CHEESY LAMBURGER

1 pound ground lamb
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon finely chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon dijon-style mustard
4 multi-grain hamburger buns
4 lettuce leaves
4 slices tomato

Mix the cheese, pickle relish, onion, green pepper, and mustard. Shape lamb into 8 thin patties about 4-inches in diameter. Spoon cheese mixture onto center of four of the patties. Top each with another pattie, pressing edges to seal filling inside.

Grill over moderate heat or broil 4-inches from the heat for about 5 minutes per side or until medium doneness. Serve on toasted bun with lettuce leaf and sliced tomato.

4-H Babysitting Course

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.)—Young people ages 11-14 are invited to a program that will help prepare them to become better babysitters. A course, "4-H Babysitting and Child Care" will be offered at three different locations this summer: at the Montgomery County 4-H Center near Skippack; at the new Wissahickon Library in Blue Bell; and at the Indian Valley Library in Telford.

The 4-H Center will run the course twice a week, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 6:15-7:45 p.m., beginning Tuesday June 6 and ending Thursday, June 22. At the Wissahickon Library, the course is scheduled to run for six Monday evenings, beginning June 26 and concluding on August 7, from 7-8:30 p.m. The Indian Valley Library Course will take place during the week of August 14, running Monday through Friday, from 2-3:45 p.m.

The cost for the courses at the 4-H Center and at the Wissahickon Library is $5.00. Scholarships are available. Because of a special grant from the Indian Valley Kiwanis Club, the fee at the Indian Valley Library course will be waived at this time. This course is being funded under Kiwanis International's major emphasis to help young children from newborn to six years old. All course materials will be provided by the 4-H program and participants will become 4-H members as a result of taking the course.

Class size is limited to fifteen and you must be at least eleven years old before the course begins to participate. There are limited openings at the 4-H Center and at the Indian Valley Library, so register early. To register for the Telford and 4-H Center classes, call Helaine Brown, 4-H Agent, at (610) 489-4315. For the Wisshickon Library course, please call Joan Berry at the Library, at (215) 643-1320.

Cook's • Question • Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Linda Lundberg of Great Meadows would like a recipe for pumpkin butter.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like a recipe for Autumn Soup, which contains hambuger, celery, corn, potatoes, tomatoes, onion, basil, salt and pepper.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like a candy called Decadent, which she thinks is made in North or South Carolina. She'd also like a bread recipe called Arkansas Travelers Bread, a fruit cake called ice box fruit cake, which includes marshmallows, Hi Ho Crackers, evaporated milk, mixed candied fruits, and nuts, and a cherry pie made with red Kool-Aid.

QUESTION — A Chambersburg lover of Section B would like recipes for "all fruit" jellies without artificial sweeteners and granulated sugar. She asks, is meadow tea and spearmint tea caffeine free? She'd like details on using a smoker. Do you burn charcoal or wood? How do you keep the fire hot while adding wood? How do you keep ashes off the meat? How can you tell if it's hot enough?

QUESTION — Nancy Price, Jarrettsville, would like a recipe for fruit sauce such as they serve with ham at Horn and Horn Restaurant. She has tried other recipes but none is as good as Horn and Horn's.

QUESTION — A Potter County reader would like a recipe for sweet gherkin pickles.

QUESTION — Dick Taylor, Allentown, N.J., would like a recipe for hot pepper sauce using lime juice and carrots as opposed to the traditional method of using vinegar and tomatoes. He writes that lime juice enhances the pepper flavor more than vinegar.

QUESTION — Dee Crowder, Gettysburg, is looking for a recipe similar to Rotel or Chi-Chi's Tomato and Green Chilies. Also, she'd like salsa recipes.

QUESTION — Lena Hoover, Shippensburg, would like recipes for instant vanilla, chocolate, and butterscotch puddings.

QUESTION — Andy Andrews, Brownstown, would like the recipe for pecan collision, a dessert served at a local smorgasbord.

QUESTION — Fannie Stoltzfus, Christiana, would like a recipe to make rice cakes.

QUESTION — Gina Hawbaker would like to know how to make a salad dressing similar to the house dressing at Atrim House Restaurant in Greencastle.

QUESTION — Gina Hawbaker's brothers want to know how to fix chestnuts by roasting and other ways.

QUESTION — Dorothy Carvell would like a recipe for wild rice soup like that served at Lapp's Restaurant in Granite Run.

QUESTION — Brenda Scott, Bellefonte, wants a recipe for cabbage slaw to put on ham and pork barbecues.

QUESTION — Brenda Scott, Bellefonte, wants a recipe for a basting sauce to baste a 225-pound roasting pig as it's being cooked in a large pig cooker.

ANSWER — Ron Kieffer, Hamburg, wanted a recipe for black raspberry syrup. Thanks to Lou Shultz, Harrisburg, for sending a favorite recipe that she said is good on ice cream.

Raspberry Sauce

2 teaspoons cornstarch
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup water
1 pint raspberries

In medium saucepan, combine cornstarch and sugar. Stir in water and raspberries. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium heat until mixture simmers for two minutes and is slightly thickened. Strain through fine sieve, pressing pulp with back of spoon. Discard seeds. Chill.

If frozen raspberries are used, defrost two 10-ounce packages, but do not add additional sugar or water. Blend in cornstarch. Heat mixture gently until sauce is thickened. Chill.

ANSWER — Mrs. King wrote that she had a recipe that she lost for delicious peanut butter marble brownies. Thanks to Rebecca Beiler, New Holland, for sending a recipe.

Peanut Butter Swirl Bars

½ cup crunchy-style peanut butter
⅓ cup butter, softened
¾ cup brown sugar
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
12-ounces semi-sweet chocolate morsels

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a large bowl, combine peanut butter, butter, brown sugar, and granulated sugar; beat until creamy. Gradually beat in eggs and vanilla extract. Blend in flour, baking powder, and salt. Spread into greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Sprinkle chocolate morsels over top. Place in 350 degree oven for 3 minutes. Remove from oven, run knife through to marbleize. Return to oven. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool. Cut into 2x1-inch bars. Makes 48 bars.

ANSWER — Ellen McComrey, Oxford, was searching for a baked pineapple recipe. Thanks to Loretta Bauer, Pennsburg, for sending a recipe.

Baked Pineapple

4 beaten eggs
2 tablespoons flour
¾ cup granulated sugar

Mix well and add:

1 can crushed pineapple
3 slices white bread, cubed

Mix together ingredients and pour into a vegetable-sprayed 8-inch square pan. Pour ¼ cup melted butter over top. Bake one hour at 350 degrees. Serve hot.

Serves 6.

QUESTION — Nancy Pacitti, Philadelphia, wanted the recipe for lima beans in tomato sauce that is found in most area Pennsylvania Dutch smorgasbords. Thanks to Stan Kitchen for sending a recipe.

Baked Limas

2 cups dried lima beans
4 slices bacon
1 small onion
1 green pepper
1 cup canned tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon mustard
2 tablespoons brown sugar

Wash beans and soak overnight in cold water. In the morning, drain and add 2 quarts fresh water. Cook until almost tender. Pour beans into a buttered casserole. Add minced pepper, onion, tomatoes and seasoning. Mix together. Place bacon on top and bake in covered casserole for 2 hours at 325 degrees. Add more liquid if necessary. Leave uncovered the last 20 minutes. Serves 6.

ANSWER — A reader wanted the recipe for evaporated milk. Thanks to N.E. Kreitzer, Lebanon, for sending a recipe.

Evaporated Milk

Process in blender:

1 cup nonfat dry milk
1¼ cups water

Makes 1⅓ cup or the equivalent of an 11-ounce can.

Reduce Cancer Risk

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.)—"Eat Five" is the title of a new five part learn-at-home series on nutrition offered by Penn State Cooperative Extension of Bradford County.

The series was written by Extension Nutrition specialists from Penn State University. Each lesson addresses the "Five a Day for Better Health" slogan being used by the National Cancer Institute and the Produce for Better Health Foundation to encourage Americans to eat more fruits and vegetables. Information is included in the series on how to make adjustments to your diet that may help to lower your risk of developing certain types of cancers and improve your overall health.

Each lesson takes no more than one hour to complete.

Each of the five lessons also includes: recipes; a worksheet to help you determine how you're doing, for example, with vegetable consumption habits; information on storing, preparing and cooking vegetables and fruits; and getting kids involved with preparing, cooking, and eating vegetables and fruits.

The lessons will be distributed beginning the first week in June, with one lesson being mailed each week. To receive the series send your name, address, phone number, and $5 to cover cost of postage to "Eat Five", Penn State Cooperative Extension, 701 South Fourth Street, Towanda, PA 18848, by June 1. Checks should be made payable to "Bradford County Extension." For additional information contact the Extension Office at (717) 265-2896.

Food Safety Update

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.)—It is estimated that there are 24-81 million cases of foodborne illness each year. According to the Center for Disease Control, 9,000 deaths result annually from foodborne diseases.

To address this concern, Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties and the Northeastern District Pennsylvania Dietetic Association are sponsoring, "Update—Food Safety and OSHA" for health professionals and food inspectors on Wednesday, June 14, from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. in Nazareth Hall at Marywood College in Scranton.

The program will offer workshops on OSHA (the Occupational Safety Hazard Act), inspections of food establishments, microbial research on foodborne pathogens, food mycology (molds, fungi, and yeasts), and HACCP (Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point). Registered dietitians, diet technicians, certified dietary managers and American Culinary Certified chefs will receive 5 hours of continuing education for the training.

The cost of the program which includes lunch, breaks, and material is $15. Registrations may be made by calling Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna County at (717) 963-6842 by June 6. Persons with disabilities who anticipate needing acommodation or who have questions about physical access may contact Karen Thomas at (717) 963-6842 in advance of the program.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Election Day has come and gone but the memory of a small turnout lingers in my mind. People seem to feel that this election is not important even though it is the time when they pick the people to be voted on in the fall. It seems that a Presidential election really gets people interested in politics.

The district that I work in only had about one-fourth of the registered voters voting. It is a 14-hour job but one that allows me to see neighbors that otherwise I would not see. In November most of the same people will again make the trip to the polls to show their preference for nominees.

Last week my husband and I took the boat to our camp site and this time we left it at Walker Lake. We picked rainy days to go there and we had to wear raingear as we fished during the showers. We caught 20 fish in two days of fishing but most of them were pan fish. However, we did get some nice perch and a trout.

One night while we were eating the fish that I prepared in our camper for supper, the lights went out. We had no electric and the battery failed, too. Boy, was it dark to pick bones out of fish. But, the electric did come back on and we finished our meal and could read magazines until bedtime.

In the morning, we awakened to sunshine and lots of tiny birds in the treetops. When I took a walk in the woods, I discovered a Roseshell azalea growing on a large native shrub. The flowers were a delicate pink as they bloom in late May.

Now that I'm home again, I must spend more time in the garden. The peas have been blooming for weeks and will soon be ready to pick.

Grow Cut Flowers As Alternative Crop

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Cut flowers can be a high-value alternative crop — if you can carve out a marketing niche, says a Penn State horticulture expert.

"Cut flowers, including both field- and greenhouse-grown varieties, can bring in a higher return per acre than many agronomic crops," says Dr. Robert Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Growing flowers is, however, very labor-intensive and can require more of an investment — especially if it means building a greenhouse," he adds. "Chances are you won't get rich raising cut flowers, but many growers make a reasonably comfortable living growing them full time."

Cut flowers grown in Pennsylvania include both greenhouse- and field-grown annual and perennial crops, such as daffodils, lilies, snapdragons and sunflowers. Some growers specialize in plants that can be used in dried arrangements, such as straw flowers and statice.

Many farmers have begun raising cut flowers or other ornamentals as an additional income source. "It can be an excellent business for a farm spouse or other family members," says Berghage. "This is done all over the state and is especially common in the Southeast, where there are a lot of full- and part-time flower growers.

"You can grow any flower that is used in florists' arrangements," Berghage says. "But it pays to grow specialty crops, such as German statice, rather than widely grown items such as carnations, chrysanthemums or roses."

Carnations, chrysanthemums and roses used to be grown extensively in Pennsylvania, but now mostly are grown in Colombia and other Latin American countries and shipped to the United States. "Even though these flowers are shipped long distances, they often are sold at lower prices than those grown locally," said Berghage

Although some Pennsylvania growers still successfully market roses and carnations, most growers are better off growing other flowers."

Growing cut flowers doesn't necessarily require a lot of land, unless you're planning to go into business in a big way. "Many people grow flowers in their backyards and sell them locally," Berghage says. "Visit any farmers' market and you'll probably see at least one person selling cut flowers."

Others sell their merchandise through cooperatives or have their own wholesale or retail businesses. "Small growers are better off growing a variety of flowers and selling locally or working through a cooperative," Berghage says.

"If you want to compete with larger businesses, it's important to keep up with the trends," he says. "Many flowers go in and out of style. For instance, there has been a sunflower fad for the past few years, but that's becoming passe. Shrewd growers are already anticipating what will be popular next.

"Read everything you can find about the business," Berghage says. "Get to know your local florists, and find out what flowers they are interested in buying. Visit farmers' markets in your area and see what others are growing and size up your competition."

If you're thinking of growing and marketing cut flowers, several associations and periodicals can help. The horticulture expert at your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office is an excellent source of information on floriculture groups and publications.

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding

Disaster's Edge Marks 1889 Johnstown Flood

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

ST. MICHAEL (Cambria Co.) — The 1995 Cambria County Envirothon held recently was the inaugural event for the new "Disaster's Edge" Education/Resource Center in the 1889 Park, St. Michael.

"Disaster's Edge" is located on the banks of what was once known as Lake Conemaugh, the dam which broke on May 31 causing the "1889 Johnstown Flood." More than 2,200 lives were lost in that disaster.

The facility has been a dream of Cambria County Conservation District environmental education coordinator, Joe Emerick. Emerick has been employed with the conservation district for approximately 19 years. Emerick stresses that each child in the county will have the benefit of what can be offered at the education center.

The building will be utilized for a variety of environmental programs in conjunction with local school districts. It contains an open classroom, storage room, office space, small kitchen, and restrooms. Evening and weekend program can also be set up for local civic groups and other organizations upon request.

The realization of this building came about through the cooperative effort of many different Cambria County organizations and individuals. The site was donated by the Adams and Croyle Township Recreation Authority and then cleared by workers under the Summer Youth Employment Training program.

Funding for the building itself was primarily provided by Air Products and Chemicals of Ebensburg, a cogeneration plant. The actual construction was done by prisoners from the Cambria County Prison. The Long Barn of St. Michael furnished materials at the lowest possible cost and also provided use of equipment when necessary. The Cambria County commissioners have provided tables, chairs, and a bookcase along with agreeing to fund the utilities, insurance, and upkeep.

Emerick has been overwhelmed by the response which he has received in a appeal to local school districts and individuals. At last count more than $12,000 has been donated for the purchase of equipment and funding of programs.

During the "Envirothon," five different "stations" — Soils, Forestry, Wildlife, Aquatics, and Current Issues — were set up inside and outside the educational center. These stations were manned by personnel from Cambria County Environmental agencies. These agencies included Natural Resource Conservation Service, Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, Pennsylvania Game Commission, DER Bureau of Land and Water Conservation, and the Penn State Extension Service.

The students were tested on a variety of subjects in each category but the major emphasis this year was on ground water, its impact on rural life, and how easily it can be destroyed.

Eight teams from Cambria County competed in the event. These teams included: Bishop Carroll, Blacklick Valley, Cambria Heights, Central Cambria, Conemaugh Valley, Forest Hills, Glendale, and Northern Cambria High Schools.

Each team was comprised of five to six students and the top honor this year went to the students from Northern Cambria High School. As first place winners, they will represent the county in a regional "Envirothon" in June. The contest then continues to the state and national levels.

A real highlight of the day came at the conclusion of the "Envirothon."

The Pennsylvania Game Commission brought in a female black bear and cub which had been caught in a trap in the Baker-ton-Carrolltown area. The students were able to view firsthand the game commission's bear management program.

The bear was tranquilized, the ear was tagged, she was tattooed inside the lip, and a tooth was extracted. The tooth will be cross-sectioned and this will help determine the bear's age. The participants were very excited to be able to photograph and "pet" the bear.

The "Envirothon" concept originated in the early 1980s by a conservation manager from Fulton County with the idea to make young people more aware of the environment. Cambria County's new "Disaster's Edge" facility is definitely a step in the right direction.

Commenting on the day's activities, Emerick noted that any student who participates in an event such as this will surely remember it for a long time to come.

He challenged the students with the words: "May the choices you make help our world be a better place for all life and the environment!"

Dietary Guidelines Should Make Sense For Kids Too

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — If you're a healthy adult, the USDA's Dietary Guidelines for Americans were written with you in mind. In seven points, the Guidelines give a framework to use for developing wise eating habits that may reduce your risk of chronic disease.

The guidelines, most recently revised in 1990, reduced mountains of nutrition research and layers of nutrition controversy to a list that most of us can apply fairly easily to our everyday eating habits. It sounds simple enough — eat a variety of foods, maintain healthy weight, choose a diet that's low in fat, saturated fat and cholesterol and one with plenty of vegetables, fruits and grain products, while using sugars, salt, sodium and alcoholic beverages in moderation. This advice was meant to be applied over a period of time, allowing for moderate use of a variety of foods.

The Dietary Guidelines have been widely used as a reasonable basis for nutrition decisions by the federal government, corporations and by consumers trying to make a case for moderation in making healthy food choices. For most healthy adults the advice is reasonable.

Children under the age of two have been exempted from the Dietary Guidelines. In the critical growth and development spurt from birth to two years, healthy children need a high fat diet (50% of their energy from fat) to ensure they get enough calories and essential fatty acids for neurological development. Breast milk or formula is the first source of balanced nutrition for a baby. As a child grows, appropriate forms of such nutrient-dense foods as whole grains, meats, dairy products and fruits and vegetables are added.

The government had advised that the Dietary Guidelines are appropriate from age two on. Actually, a child's second birthday is just one milestone in growth and development. Rather than abruptly shifting a child's diet at age two, the transition needs to be gradual to adulthood. From age two until they stop growing, kids still need relatively more food energy and essential nutrients in their diets than they will as adults.

Canada has already revised its Nutrition Recommendations to give more flexible food choices from growing children and adolescents. According to the Report of the Joint Working Group of the Canadian pediatric Society and Health Canada, growing children are advised to make a gradual transition from a high-fat diet to the adult recommendations of less than 30% calories from fat and less than 10% from saturated fat. While children can eat the same foods, including those in lower fat, as the result of the family, parents are advised to allow children to select nutrient-dense higher fat foods more often than adults and not to restrict certain foods because of fat content.

The Canadians recognized that current recommendations could not be applied to children because they are not little adults — they have unique caloric and nutrient needs. The Canadian goal was to improve guidelines of food choices that meet children's needs for adequate energy and nutrients to ensure long-term growth and development, focusing on the total diet instead of single nutrients.

As a result, the general application of the U.S. Dietary Guidelines is now being questioned, especially in regard to fat intake restrictions. Instead of taking a restrictive approach, many nutritionists are emphasizing the need to ensure that children get both adequate energy and the right mix of nutrients for growth. In the U.S., the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that children not consume less than 30% calories from fat and the American Dietetic Association has advised that the U.S. chart distinct guidelines for children.

If low-fat foods are substituted for more energy dense foods, kids need to add calories from other energy sources — preferably complex carbohydrates. But whole grain bread, rice and pasta, for example are bulkier and less energy dense than the higher-fat foods they may be replacing. Kids may eat less or fill up on "empty-calorie" snacks. Every bite of food begins to count and a child's diet needs to be carefully monitored to make sure there are enough nutrients.

Ensuring that children meet these needs can be challenging for parents. Preschool age children may appear to have erratic eating habits, preferring one food to the exclusion of all others or eating what seems to be tiny amounts of food. But frustrated parents should take heart — research has shown that in a 24-hour period, kids will usually self-select a varied diet of the nutrients they need. They may not eat much at any one time, but instead need to eat more frequently to get the nutrients and energy they need. The key is to provide a wide variety of food choices.

As children grow closer to adulthood, their growth is slower, but steady. In the years before puberty, many kids gain some fat and become more sensitive about body image. But restrictive eating and dieting may delay normal growth and the onset of puberty.

Adolescents, girls in particular, are especially vulnerable to choosing inadequate diets. Girls from age 10 to 12 and in their young teens are consistently reported to get too little calcium, iron and zinc from the foods they eat. For example, a young teen girl needs at least 1200 mg calcium per day, the equivalent of four 8-ounce cups of milk or yogurt. But many are more aware of limiting calories than getting enough calcium, let alone making the effort to eat more of less dense, but acknowledge sources of calcium like green leafy vegetables.

Specific Dietary Guidelines for children would distinguish their special food needs from those healthy adults. Children are not little adults. Our national Dietary Guidelines should be amended to reflect.

Trevor Steinbach, National Dairy Council (left), presented an award to Jan Stanton, director, Dairy Council, for her organization's 75 years of outstanding achievement in nutrition education. The presentation was made at the Buck Hotel in Feasterville at a special celebration. Formed in 1920, Dairy Council was created to provide free milk to undernourished school children. Today, the organization works with educators and health professionals in 25 counties throughout the tri-state area, supplying nutrition information on such topics as: school breakfast, osteoporosis, diet and weight control. Dairy Council is funded by area dairy farmers.

Flower Arranging Made Easy

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — If you love flowers in your home, but feel intimidated when it comes to arranging them yourself, you'll be happy to hear that natural-looking arrangements are in vogue.

No more stiff, artificial-appearing arrangments that need each flower to be positioned exactly the same distance between flowers. Instead, arrangements that resemble a growing flower garden are gaining in popularity.

Natural-looking arrangements have no hard and fast rules. But the more an arrangement resembles growing plants, the more attractive it is.

Spikes or cyclinder-shaped flowers work best in giving height to an arrangement. To insert fragile stems in Oasis, hold stems near base and poke sporadically. Round flowers are tucked around the base and to give depth in an arrangement.

Generally, natural-looking arrangements combine numerous types of flowers in a variety of colors. The flowers are arranged as if they are growing in a garden.

Choosing Foliage

Foliage is used to cover the base and provide interest throughout the arrangement. Combine several different greens — from the fine needles of pine to the complicated lattice work fronds of fern and the feathery leaves of mountain ash — to add importance in arrangements.

Arrange foliage so that the greens appear to be growing out from the center and the edges of the container are covered. Greenery should spill over the edges in the front and sides of container. Follow the shape of the foliage and work from the base up.

Many farm wives and those who live in the country have access to wildflowers and free-flowing greens found in meadows and in woodlands. Don't be timid when it comes to combining many different varieties of flowers.

Early summer is the best time to find a wonderful array of flowers. Enjoy them all — from the deliciously sweet fragrance of old roses, peonies, and sweet peas to Queen Ann's Lace growing along the roadside.

Gone are the days of strict color rules of combining colors that are close on the color spectrum. Few colors look terrible together. Colors on the opposite end of the spectrum such as as orange and blue look stunning and daring.

Choosing Containers

Decide what type of container is best suited to the flowers gathered.

Use containers such as sprinkling cans, ornate dishes, watering cans, baskets, cups, mugs, jugs, casserole dishes, terracotta, clear glass, ceramic, metal, stone, and even cracked pieces of china. Baskets complement rustic, twiggy arrangements.

Allow the form of the vase to dictate the shape and style of arrangements. A tall, straight-sided vase demands tall-straight spires of flowers. A round bowl looks best with a generous curved arrangement.

Line baskets and other porous containers with plastic containers similar in size. Use fully-soaked Oasis to hold the flowers in position.

Containers provide the bed that must be in harmony with the flowers. The general rule is that the overall creation should be about three times the height of the container and twice as wide — but many delightful arrangements break this rule.

Choosing the Setting

Before beginning to arrange the flowers, consider where you will place the arrangment. .

Will it be viewed from all sides or placed against a wall?

Consider the space for an idea of the scale and size of the arrangement. Coffee table arrangements should be appealing from above and all sides.

Elaborate arrangements are found in Victorian styles, which may use tremendous mixtures of flowers and foliage. Extravagant arrangements are ideal in a large room of a farmhouse, but might seem overpowering in a small contemporary room.

Caring for Arrangements

Crooked stems and hanging flowers offer an informal free-growing look, but wilted flowers look terrible. Here are some tips to follow to keep your arrangement fresh and long lasting.

- Add a few drops of bleach and a teaspoon of sugar, and stir or use flower preservatives according to directions.

Replace the water in a vase frequently.

- Remove dead flowers, leaves, and stems. Replace with fresh flowers if necessary.

- Use a warm detergent-bleach solution to clean everything that comes in contact with fresh flowers. This prevents the spread of bacteria.

- Metal containers corrode easily and can contaminate the water and shorten the life of flowers.

- It is best to use distilled, reverse osmosis or deionized water.

- Remove foliage from stems below water line. Foliage in water creates bacteria and causes flowers to deteriorate. Remove damaged flowers and leaves because they can carry bacteria and produce ethylene gas that destroys flowers.

- Cut stems under water. When flowers are not cut under water, air gets into the stem and blocks the flow of water, causing the flowers to wilt. Place the stems in warm water preservative solution.

- Use preservatives to enhance the quality, color and lasting ability of flowers. Follow instructions for measuring and mixing preservatives.

- Never leave flowers out of water.

English Country Design

English Country is an interior design style developed from the rural cottages of England. These cottages were minimal in space and were usually built of stone or brick. The use of repetitive flowers, birds, or trellis patterns on dark backgrounds produced a busy, almost indistinguishable pattern.

Containers should be either simple glass vases, silver, pieces of china, porcelain or baskets. The flowers should be a combination of garden materials. The individual flowers are not the most important element, but the overall display should convey a feeling of warmth and elegance.

French Country is doing what it has done in France for centuries; evolving. No longer anchored in the 18th century, today's informal French style is more appealing than ever. Their interiors reflect the bright blue skies and rich colors of the Van Gogh Country. Fabrics from the French countryside have historically contributed gulleless charm. Now a more softer mood prevails. Look for the new style fabrics to be more expressive in movement and scale than the more expected tiny patterened wood, block prints first refined in the mid 1700s in France.

The traditional colors such as ochres, silver green, terracotta and cerulean blue pulled from the earth, the sky and the fields of provence still appear. Also, they take a sunlit yellow from a painting, a fuchsia and a tangerine. Country French is eclectic and less cluttered than other country styles. Containers are varied, rustic baskets, terracotta, copper, wrought iron. Flowers are usually grouped in a strong European style. The design is natural and loose in feel. Country French, by intent, is never perfect.

Instead of rules, it asks for freedom and spontaneity, which combined with a discriminating eye, yields true elegance.

American Primitive has no formula for design. Many elements of American Country are inspired by the traditions of Europe. Thus the Cape Cod cottage was patterned after the English cottage, while the southern plantation homes were reminiscent of English estate homes. Function and economy are important factors in the American Country style. Fabrics and wall coverings are typically of natural materials such as cottons and wools. Prints were more often plaids, checks or wood block prints. Floral designs typically in American primitive homes are dependent on seasonally available material. Great bouquets of wildflowers are common in summer time, and changes in weather encourage the drying of materials so that arrangements can be enjoyed all year. American County tends to reflect a more rustic environment. Baskets, wooden containers, crockery, pewter are appropriate container choices. Woody vines, dried materials and natural weedy grasses are often incorporated within the arrangements.

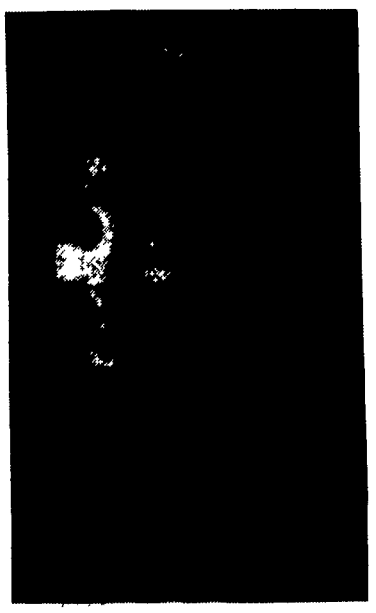
Kristy Wilson Named Outstanding Ag Student

Kristy Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wilson of Delta, was recently named winner of the 1995 Dekalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award.

The award, sponsored nationwide by Dekalb Genetics Corporation, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship, leader and supervised agricultural program. Presenting the award were advisors Jerry Hughes and Dianna Dellinger.

Kristy attends Kennard-Dale H.S., where she has been FFA treasurer, secretary, and she was also York County reporter. Her agricultural program consists of dairy heifers. Following graduation, she plans to attend York Technical Institute.



Kristy Wilson

As this year's winner, Kristy receives a pin and certificate, and her name will be inscribed on a special plaque displayed in the agriculture room. The Dekalb Award, often considered the highest honor a vo-ag student can receive on the local level, is presented at nearly 3,000 schools annually.

Cedar Crest FFA Participates In Regional Contest

On May 2, the Cedar Crest FFA entered the Eastern Regional Parliamentary Procedure Contest. The team place second and will get to go on to state competition at Penn State University in June.

The contest consisted of eight FFA members who demonstrated parliamentary abilities in an FFA meeting. The team could present unfinished and new business, but the meeting had to be completed within 20 minutes.

The Cedar Crest team members included Chuck Aurentz, Jon Harnish, Keith Wartluft, Jeff Zimmerman, Stacy Krall, Jamie Risser, Mike Hostetter, Andy Martin, and Sean Weaver as an alternate. The judges for the contest were Dean Patches, Lowell Morton, and Stan Busher.

Twin Valley FFA Members Receive State FFA Record Book Honors

Twenty-nine members of the Twin Valley FFA chapter entered record books in the recent Pennsylvania FFA Record Book Contest.

All students in all of the agriculture courses at Twin Valley High School are required to keep record books. Records may be kept on pets, farm animals or crops, jobs, research projects, improvement projects, skills development project, or wildlife conservation projects.

Students have their record books graded once a month by agriculture teacher Ronald Frederick. Employers and former students have both stated that the ability to keep and understand records is one of the most important things to learn while in school.

Top record books from FFA chapters are selected to compete in the state FFA Record Book Contest, where they are judged based upon neatness, completeness, and accuracy.

Students from across the state are eligible to enter their records. The records entered in the state contest are scored by a committee of agriculture teachers from across the state with the current student teachers in agricultural education helping to score.

All records are given a numerical score with only the very best receiving gold, silver, or bronze medal awards.

Earning gold medals were Beth Pecht for her work experience records, Crystal Care for records on her dogs, Denetra Gerbrich for records on her pet birds, Erika Lindberg for records on her horse, Holly Smoker for her work experience records, Larry Medaglia for his work experience records, Lynn Hepner for records on her pet turtle, Melissa Makris for work and wildlife conservation records, Michelle Jacobs for records on her pet dog, and Tara Plewa for records on her wildlife conservation project.

Silver medals were awarded to Kate Collman for her sheep records, Rebecca Duncan for her work records, Rachael Stouch for her work records, Michelle Steve for records on her pet dog, Marisa Ziegler for records on her pet birds, Maggie Pavlesich for records on her pet rabbits, Keely DeMarco for records on her pet guinea pig, Kary Updegraff for records on her pet rabbit, Corryn Brown for records on her horse, Beth Pecht for records on her pet dog, AmyJo VanBodegraven for records on her seeing eye puppy, Alyssa Taylor for records on her pet and Adrienne Neff for her work records.

Bronze medals went to Jennifer Weber for her pet cat, Joellyn Kinsey for her dog, Larry Medaglia for his wildlife conservation records, Mike Reed for his work records, Michele Steve for her work records, Nate Messner for his horse records, Raina Olexa for her wildlife records, Rebecca Gardner for her rabbit records and Rose Samojeden for her work records.

Solanco FFA Holds Annual Awards Program

•The Star Greenhand Award, presented to a first year chapter member who has excelled in the Agriculture Education Program, was awarded to Jennifer Hess.

•The Star Red Rose FFA Production Award was presented to Joy Young. She is active in conducting projects in beef finishing, rabbit production, dairy heifer, and market lambs. She was also a member of the first place Pleasure Horse Judging Team at last year's state contest. In addition, Young has also been selected as Lancaster County Star Red Rose Production member.

•The Star Red Rose Agribusiness Award was presented to Andrea Kreider. Kreider works at Maplehofe Dairy, and completed additional on-farm work experience on the Sam and Allen Kreider & Sons dairy farm. She is active in all phases of the agriculture and FFA programs, particularly in the area of public speaking.

•The Star Keystone Award was presented to Donnie Ammerman for his highest score on leadership activities and in his project program.

FFA members receiving Greenhand Degrees, which are presented to first year FFA members in agriculture education, are Sonya Angeline, Jennifer Hess, James Kerr, Cory Landis, Robert Lowery, Britina Robinson, Dwayne Spangler, and Jason Wood.

Chapter Degrees are presented to second year members who have received their Greenhand Degree and have completed a project book. Recipients of Chapter Degrees are Chris Althoff, Jimmy Angeline, Kurt Barto, Roy Haldeman, Justine Hill, Mike Houghton, Nate Kreider, Nick Kreider, Jennifer Pierce, Sara Strickler, and Jeremy Welk.

Red Rose Degrees are presented by the Lancaster County Red Rose FFA to only eight percent of the total county FFA membership. This degree is awarded to third year members who must submit an application to be considered for this degree. Red Rose Degree recipients are as follows: Andrea Kreider, Joy Young, Andy Young, Connie Stanley, and Jen Riley.

The Keystone FFA Degree is the highest degree awarded by the State FFA organization. Applicants were judged on the basis of their leadership abilities in and out of school, involvement in community organizations and activities, and their project program, and FFA activities. This year, Solanco had three members receive this degree during the Mid-Winter Convention in Harrisburg. Recipients are Bill Davis, Matt Strickler, and Donnie Ammerman.

Two Solanco FFA members, Patty Huber and Betsy Pownall, received the American FFA Degree, the highest award a FFA member can attain in the organization.

The Solanco FFA presented Metzler Mower Service with an Honorary Chapter Degree for providing the Power and Technology class with parts and technical advice for the past five years.

Corn Production Awards were presented in two categories: grain and silage. The Grain Production Award, sponsored by A.L. Herr & Brother, Inc., was presented to Kurt Barto for 144.6 bushels per acre. The Corn Production for Silage Award, sponsored by Powl's Feed Service, was presented to Daryl Supplee for 26 tons per acre.

The Farm Women #20 Award is presented to a senior agriculture student who has conducted at least one project program of state standard size and has taken an active role in the FFA. This year's recipient is Matt Strickler.

The Paul Risk Associates, Inc. Award is presented to a senior who has exhibited initiative in making the most of the opportunities available to them. This year's recipient is Bill Davis.

The Ross H. Rohrer and Sons, Inc. Award is presented to a senior member who has shown an interest in the dairy industry and has contributed to the dairy industry in the local area through a project program. This year's recipient is John Kiser.

The Dairy Calf Award is given to promote an interest in breeding purebred dairy cattle; to offer a member the opportunity to start or add to his/her dairy herd; and to stimulate interest in improved dairy farm practices, a love for farm animals, and an active participation in cooperative enterprise. This year, the purebred registered dairy calf was awarded to Jeremy Welk.

The Past President's Award, sponsored by Keystone Farm Credit, ACA-Quarryville, was presented to Matt Strickler, who will step down as the 1994-'95 Chapter President at the end of this school year.

Scholarship Awards were presented to the following students for their outstanding academic achievements in the total school program: Britina Robinson, Sara Strickler, Jennifer Hess, James Kerr, Dwayne Spangler, Robert Lowery, Joy Young, James Angeline, Jennifer Pierce, Bryan Byers, Nate Hoover, Justine Hill, and Andy Young.

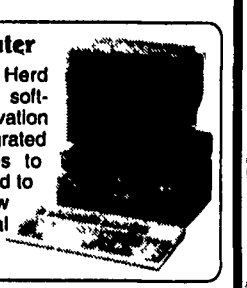
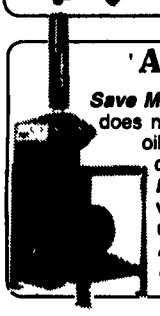
Opti-Flo (Milk transfer System)

This control allows the milk pump to deliver a steady, gentle flow of milk to the plate cooler to achieve more efficient cooling. Since milk goes through the plate cooler at a slower pace, the water has a better chance to take the heat out of the milk, and increase the quality of the milk.

Agri-Comp Computer



The Agri-comp 2045 Herd Management Computer and software are state-of-the-art innovation at its finest. The totally integrated package with direct link-ups to detachers with milk meters and to feed stations updates cow data instantly in three vital areas: 1) milk production; 2) feeding and 3) breeding



Air-Star Vacuum Pump

High Performance – The Air-Star vacuum pump creates stable vacuum with low power consumption. Air-Star vacuum pumps are available in sizes from 5 HP to 25 HP.

Flo-Star Claws

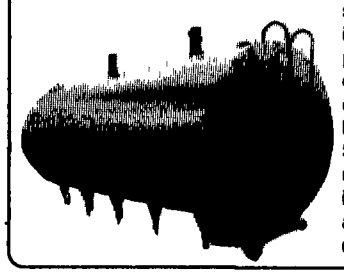
Dari-Kool Milk Cooler



Dari-Kool milk coolers, larger than 800 gallons, are constructed with two or more independent, full-flow cooling plates. this fail-safe design distributes the cooling load efficiency and equally between compressors. Should one compressor fail, milk will be cooled by the other independent system, thereby avoiding the loss of a tank of milk.

Dari-Kool Plate Cooler

The Dari-Kool Plate Cooler reduces risk of downgraded milk and income loss, because quick cooling ensures you ship quality milk. It cuts bulk milk cooler run time, reducing wear and tear on the compressor It fits any existing system it's compact, economical, and adapts to your needs.

Dog Ticks Spread Thoughout State

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — Lyme disease and the Lyme-carrying deer tick have received much publicity in recent years. But another tick, and the potentially deadly disease it can harbor, is a growing concern in Pennsylvania.

"The American dog tick has expanded its range in Pennsylvania over the last few decades," says Dr. Robert Snetsinger, professor of entomology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"From 2 to 10 percent of these ticks carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever," he says. "Because American dog ticks now exist in areas where they weren't found before, health care professionals should know the symptoms of the disease and be alert for possible cases."

About 15 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever are reported in Pennsylvania in an average year. The number of cases in any year may range from fewer than 10 to more than 30. But Snetsinger says there likely are many more cases that are misdiagnosed or unreported.

Snetsinger believes conditions may be favorable for an upturn in Rocky Mountain spotted fever in 1995. "Our research suggests that more cases of the disease are reported in years when a milder-than-normal winter with below-average precipitation is followed by a spring season with normal or higher-than-average precipitation."

A tick must feed at least 24 hours before the disease is transmitted to the host. Three to four days after being bitten by an infected tick, a person may experience high fever — up to 105 degrees — headache, sore muscles and fatigue. The fever is commonly followed by a severe rash with reddish or purple spots.

The American dog tick is deep reddish brown, often with white mottling or blotches on its back. It typically reaches slightly more than an eighth of an inch in length, but can swell to more than a half-inch when engorged with the blood of a host. The adults can survive the winter, and are most active in April and May.

Dog ticks can be found in tall grass and on small plants, often along hiking trails or at the edge of wooded areas. They are common in areas frequented by their preferred hosts — medium-sized mammals such as dogs, raccoons and opossums.

"Dogs are ideal collectors of these ticks," says Snetsinger. "When I want to collect dog ticks for the lab, I've found that it's much more effective to let a dog run up and down a hiking trail than to have my students try to find them."

A research team led by Snetsinger has tracked the spread of the American dog tick. He says it is now established virtually everywhere in Pennsylvania.

"Before 1950, dog ticks were limited to the extreme southeast and southwest corners of the state," he says. "By 1991, they had been found in virtually every county.

"The tick's spread is not easily explained because it's rarely collected from migratory birds," says Snetsinger. "A likely scenario is that people traveling with family pets and hunting dogs have introduced ticks into areas where they didn't exist previously."

Despite their spread, American dog ticks are still most common in the southeastern and southwestern regions of the state. Snetsinger says counties where you are most likely to encounter a dog tick are Adams, Berks, Beaver, Bucks, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Lancaster, Montgomery, Northampton, Pike, Schuylkill, Washington, Westmoreland and York.

Snetsinger says the American dog tick cannot transmit Lyme disease. And even though the number of cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Pennsylvania is relatively small, it's important to know the risk. "The medical community needs to be aware of the presence of this tick and alert to the likelihood that the disease it can carry may occur with increasing frequency, especially in western and central Pennsylvania," he says.

AGCO ALLIS
8600 SERIES TRACTORS

36 SPEED CHOICES

AGCO Allis 8600 Series tractors give you 36 speed choices, an electronic engine speed governor and many other quality performance features, as well as a comprehensive 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Speed choices for all conditions. The standard synchropower transmission offers 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds. An optional power Hi-Lo transmission boosts that to 36 speeds both forward and reverse. Both 8600 Series models are AWD with planetary final drive, and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch.
- The air- and oil-cooled engine advantage. The 8600 Series tractors feature the high-output, 6-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engine that eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. The 8610 model has a 103 PTO hp engine with a 22% torque rise and the 8630 model has a 120 PTO hp turbocharged engine with a 30% torque rise.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and an electrohydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The 3-point hitch comes standard with telescopic stabilizers: Category II/I on the 8610; Category III/II on the 8630. Optional telescopic lower links are available.
- Quality performance features. The 8600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic steering, a tilt-telescope steering wheel and hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes on all four wheels for 40% better braking. These models also have electrohydraulically-actuated rear and front differential locks that an operator can manually disengage for tighter turns.

To learn about all the quality features of the 8600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Create Drought-Resistant Landscape And Conserve Water

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—Many plants need ample moisture throughout the growing season. Even if we don't have a drought this summer, creating a landscape that is more resilient in dry weather can cut back on maintenance time and help conserve water.

"To develop a drough-resistant landscape, start by conditioning the soil," says Dr. J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in Penn State's College of Agriculture Sciences. "Soil with organic matter holds water like a sponge.

"Before planting, incorporate about five bushels of compost, peat, rotted sawdust or similar material into the top 10 inches of soil for every 100-square-foot area. In addition to retaining water, this organic matter will provide nutrients and create air pockets important for healthy roots."

When you're ready to plant, select annuals, perennials, shrubs and trees that tolerate dry soil, and ask the supplier if they have been hardened off. "Hardened-off plants receive less and less water prior to sale, so they are used to drier conditions," says Nuss. "If you grow your own seedlings, gradually cut back on water before planting them outside."

Buy only dark green, sturdy plants. "Tall, spindly plants with pale leaves won't tolerate dry conditions even if you provide adequate organic matter and mulch," says Nuss.

Drought-resistant annuals include amaranth, pimpernel, nicotiana, geranium, marigold, petunia, spider flower, annual phlox, cosmos, rose moss, annual pink, gloriosa daisy, dusty miller, annual baby's breath, strawflower, verbena, lantana and zinnia.

Drought-tolerant trees and shrubs include box elder, silk tree, gray birch, hackberry, osage orange, Japanese black pine, bur oak, black locust, sassafrass, Siberian elm, Japanese barberry, flowering quince, sweetfern, gray dogwood, witch hazel, juniper, privet, bayberry, bush cinquefoil and staghorn sumac.

After you have installed your plants, one of the most effective methods of water conservation is weed control. "Weeds can consume more water than all your ornamentals put together," says Nuss. "An effective, long-term method of controlling weeds is to put a 3- to 4-inch layer of mulch around your plants. This limits the need for hand weeding and using herbicides."

Determining the direction of prevailing winds and planting or erecting windscreens can drastically decrease your landscape's water consumption. "Wind draws a lot of moisture from soil and plant tissue," says Nuss. "Reducing air movement over your plants will reduce moisture loss."

Most windbreaks modify air movement for a distance of about twice their height. For example, a 6-foot screen reduces air flow about 12 to 15 feet in front of it. "If you have plants farther away than 15 feet from your windbreak, make sure your windbreak isn't channeling wind to those plants," says Nuss. "You may need more than one windbreak if you have a large planted area."

If appearance isn't important, a snow fence covered with burlap or plastic sheets can be placed about five feet from plants. "If space permits, a shrub border provides long-term protection and adds to your landscape's beauty," says Nuss.

Shrubs that make good windscreens include flowering quince (6 feet), mentor barberry (7 feet), pea tree (15 feet), bayberry (10-12 feet), gray dogwood (12 feet) and privet (15-20 feet). Make sure to plant these shrubs at least 5 feet from your other plants so that they will not draw water from them.

Under extremely dry conditions, you can prevent moisture loss by spraying your plants with an antidessicant. Antidessicants are available at garden centers and are made of a latex-like material. The spray forms an invisible, watertight film over the leaves' surface. This film does not harm plants and wears off after a few weeks.

"Antidessecants are most effective on evergreens and mature foliage," says Nuss. "New leaves will need additional spraying as they grow. Use antidessicant sprays when the air temperature is above freezing, and make sure you cover all the leaves. You will need to spray several times as plants grow and the film wears off."

When watering your landscape, you may find that the moisture beads and runs off before the soil can absorb it. "Some kinds of soil absorb water with difficulty," says Nuss. "If you can't water your soil uniformly because of high clay or peat content, you can apply a wetting agent to reduce the surface tension of water and allow it to spread over the soil."

Soil wetting agents are available at garden centers. Some are meant for specific crops, so make sure you get the right one for your landscape. They usually are effective for about two months and then must be reapplied.

"It may not be possible to follow all these steps in one season," says Nuss. "But even following one or two can cut water consumption and make your landscape resilient in dry weather."

COMMON SENSE MOWER CONDITIONERS

Gehl mower conditioners are "common sense" machines because they're packed with sensible features.

- Full-width intermeshing conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs deliver thorough, uniform conditioning.
- Simple sickle drive with pivot-arm design provides more cutting force.
- Fewer moving parts than competitive models for worry-free performance.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar from rocks and uneven terrain.
- 9'3" cutting width.

YOUR BEST FORAGE BOX VALUE

Gehl's new BU980 Self-unloading forage box has been redesigned for improved performance and durability. Features include:

- ❒ True variable-speed drive for infinite unloading speeds.
- ❒ Single lever control.
- ❒ Improved beater design.
- ❒ Stronger drive chain and reinforced roof.
- ❒ Standard highway light package.
- ❒ Optional folding 18-inch conveyor extension.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

QUESTION — Scott Strosnider of Stephens City, Va., would like any information available on old marbles and also where he can purchase them in bulk or large amounts.

QUESTION — Yvonne Lawrence, Newburgh, N.Y., would like to know where to purchase a rhubarb and soda mixture used for indigestion. She used to purchase it in a pharmacy but finds the New York pharmacies don't stock it anymore.

QUESTION — Mrs. William Pierce, Palmyra, would like to know where to purchase antique two bottom dishes for crock-type chicken water fountains. Must be white with 10-inch top and 8-inch bottom.

QUESTION — E. Walsh from Auburn would like the name and phone number of a business that sells Round Pens for training horses. Portable pens should be 60-feet in diameter and be constructed with metal pipe panels. Approximately 6-feet high in 10 to 12-foot panels.

QUESTION — Esther Miller, Coatesville, and Edgar Jackson, Ligonier, would like to know how to puff wheat, rice, corn, and other grains for making cereal. Esther writes that when she visited Europe, the Austrians especially served puffed cereals and one of her favorites was puffed peas served with soup.

QUESTION — Patricia Varchol, Reinholds, writes that she started plants from seed for her large garden. She used a commercial planting mix for starting the seed, grew the plants under lights for 15 hours a day, watered from the bottom and watered only enough to keep them from drying out. She had a great germination rate, but since then has lost almost all the seedlings to damping off. Every time she has tried to start seeds, the seedlings met the same fate.

She knows it's too late this season, but are there tips or tricks to try next year to keep this from happening?

QUESTION — Kay McGrath, 68 Hunter St., Tamaqua, Pa., writes that she found an antique in the attic of a deceased relative. She believes it is a spinning wheel loom. She has a picture of it if someone collects such objects.

QUESTION — Paul Early, R.R. 1, Box 632A, Annville, Pa. 17008 has a hopper to a wheelbarrow grass seeder that was made in the 1920s. He would like to hear from someone who has the wheelbarrow part or he would be willing to sell the hopper.

QUESTION — A Lehighton subscriber was given an appliance called Merit Quik Chef Fast Grille. She did not receive the card and plug with it. Does anyone know where she could purchase a plug or have the address of the company that makes the grill so that she could purchase some instructions?

QUESTION — A Lebanon reader would like to know where to purchase a Kistka, an instrument that resembles an old-time fountain pen that is used to apply the wax for egg decoration.

QUESTION — Betty Bixler, 2710 Maytown Rd., Marietta, subscribes to "Country Woman," but did not receive the Nov.-Dec. 1994 issue. The company is sold out. Betty is collecting the issues and will pay cost of the magazine and postage to someone who no longer wants their copy.

QUESTION — Ruth Dundore would like the book with the following poems: Brier Rose, The Old Man Goes To School, The Station Agent's Store, and The Last Hymn. It was published about 1900.

QUESTION — Mrs. S. Carol, P.O. Box 344, Shiloh, N.J. 08353, would like some Amish penpals.

QUESTION — Maxine Tutton, Fort Royal, Va., would like the address for a mail order company that sells patterns for clothing that fits cement lawn geese that are so popular now.

Glotfelty Named

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Caren Glotfelty has been selected to occupy the Maurice K. Goddard Chair in forestry and environmental resources in Penn State's School of Forest Resources, effective May 1. She was deputy secretary for water management in the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources from April 1991 to February 1995.

The endowed chair honors Maurice Goddard, who served as secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources under five Pennsylvania governors. Goddard served as director of the School of Forest Resources as well.

"It was clear to me that the Department of Environmental Resources did not use the varied resources at Penn State to their full extent," Glotfelty said. "As Goddard professor, I'd like to come from the other direction and build bridges from the school to federal and state agencies and to increase the visibility of Penn State faculty and staff."

"We're delighted that Caren is joining Penn State. Her skills in water resource management will add a much-needed dimension to the natural resource programs at the University," said Larry Nielsen, director of the School of Forest Resources. "Her extensive work with state agencies, regional commissions and the private sector will help us address environmental dilemmas in practical and resourceful ways."

Glotfelty started her career as a planning expert in the Department Environmental Resources from 1973 to 1981. From 1981 to 1983, she worked for Maryland's Department of Health and Mental Hygiene as an environmental programs analyst and Chesapeake Bay program coordinator. In addition, she worked as a sewage enforcement officer from 1986 to 1989 in Sadsbury Township, Lancaster County, and was vice president of Winsor Associates in Ardmore, a consulting firm specializing in resolving environmental policy conflicts, from 1988 to 1990.

Glotfelty returned to DER in 1990, where she worked as special assistant to the secretary, staffing Governor Casey's Select Committee on Nonpoint Source Nutrient Management. She has a bachelor's degree from Raymond College, University of the Pacific in Stockton, California, and a master's degree in regional planning from the University of Pennsylvania.

As deputy secretary for water management, Glotfelty supervised Pennsylvania's water-related programs, including watershed management, wetlands and waterways protection, surface and groundwater quality and nonpoint source pollution. She also reorganized the department's water programs and developed its first strategic plan for water management.

Glotfelty also pushed for increased public interaction with water programs by seeking public comment and reaction earlier in the regulatory development process. She developed Pennsylvania's policy for reducing nutrient loads, agricultural runoff, sewage discharges, and stormwater runoff into the Chesapeake Bay. In addition, she also worked with Penn State to develop a Geographic Information System for DER.

"The emphasis of the Goddard Chair is on public service and outreach to environmental agencies and industries," she said. "I have done those things working in government, and working in a university setting will allow me to bring together even more diverse groups of people."

Glotfelty is looking forward to working in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, especially since she has maintained a herd of sheep on her Lancaster County farm since 1981. The farm also has about 20 acres of timber.

The Goddard Chair was endowed in 1982 with gifts from foundations, corporations, and from personal contributions. To ensure a continuous flow of new ideas and direction, the chair can be occupied by one individual for a maximum of six years.

Three Changes For CRP

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), under which producers retired production from more than 36.4 million acres of cropland under 10- to 15-year contracts, has three significant changes in it this year," said Richard Troutman, acting chairman of the Berks Consolidated Farm Service Agency (CFSA) Committee.

Producers with CRP contracts expiring Sept. 30, 1995 can extend the maturity dates for one year for part or all of the land. No new land can be added. Rental rates remain unchanged and crop insurance requirements will not apply to 1-year extensions.

CRP participants have a one-time chance to withdraw part or all of their land from the program. Not all CRP acreage is eligible for removal. CRP acreage with cover such as filterstrips, water ways, strips along riparian areas, windbreaks, shelter belts, shallow water wildlife areas, certain timber establishments or wetlands and acreage subject to wildlife easements will be required to remain in CRP.

"Sign-up for 1-year extensions and early releases from contracts will be announced later," said Troutman.

Concerning the third change, Troutman said that there will be modified program requirements covering CRP land preparation for fall seeding for producers whose contracts expire this year and who wish to plant CRP acres this fall.

"Producers wishing to begin land preparation before July 1 must obtain approval from the county committee, and the CRP rental payment will be reduced," said Troutman.

QUESTION — A Lehighton reader would like to know the market price for goose and duck eggs.

QUESTION — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, is looking for a wire jig that can be used for making patterns in any shape and size by bending the wire.

QUESTION — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, would like paper puzzles that were sometimes given away by the John Deere tractor franchises. The puzzles were made either out of thin cardboard or thick paper. The puzzle pieces were packaged inside a letter-sized envelope with instructions to solve the puzzle printed on the outside of the envelope.

QUESTION — Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, would like to know where to purchase gift boxes for jellies and breads. Candy boxes are too small.

QUESTION — Blanche Hertzler, Mt. Wolf, would like to purchase some old readers used in public school in the 1930s. She wants the third through sixth reader of the Baldwin and Bender series, copyrighted 1911 by American Book Company. She has the second reader. One of the readers has the poem "Taming the Colt," which she wants.

ANSWER — Walter Lee, Elkton, wanted to know where to purchase a hair clipper with metal guides or gauges. Thanks to Aaron Martin, Ephrata, for writing that clipper guides with metal hooks or complete clippers with interchangeable blades can be purchased from Martin's Sharpening, 502 Glenwood Dr., Ephrata, PA 17522 or phone (717) 733-0511.

ANSWER — Carol Brown of Halifax wanted patterns for an angel made out of safety pins and beads that is 10-inches high. Jo Ann Leader, R.D.#3, Box 471, Everett, PA 15537, has a pattern to share if Carol sends her full address to her.

ANSWER — Thanks to Joyce Pawlowski, Auburn, for sending a recipe for the person who wanted to know how to make a liniment using alcohol and arnica. Years ago, she received the recipe from her uncle who was with the Philadelphia Police Department. They used this for sore muscles whenever they exercised. Joyce and her family have used the liniment for years for aching muscles and strains.

Buy a 16-ounce bottle of rubbing alcohol and remove 3 ounces. Add one ounce tincture arnica, one ounce oil of wintergreen, and one ounce eucalyptus oil. Combine and shake well before each use. Use generously on aches and pains. It smells good and works wonders according to Joyce.

ANSWER — Linda Miller, Lancaster, wanted to know what she can do to produce nice thick rhubarb stalks instead of pencil-thin ones. Thanks to Evan Weidman, Westfield, for sending instructions and writing that if you have any questions to call him at (814) 376-2607. Answer: Put about 3- or 4-inches of shavings, leaves, straw or old hay on top of rhubarb in fall and leave on over winter. Do not remove shavings, it will not hurt the plants and the stalks will come up.

The plants like room to grow. Space them out to receive plenty of sunlight and water, but don't drown them. Even if you dig and cut the root, plant the half root about a foot away and it will grow. It's usually best to plant rhubarb in the fall.

OUR PATENTED FLOAT WHEEL DIRECT DRIVE SYSTEM is the only one of its kind available. This ground driven float wheel moves straight up and down (5-6") at two flotation points. This patented double floating action maintains correct ground contact at all times for both the drive wheel and rear packing wheels letting the units float independently no matter how many rows. No weight of any hitch, toolbar, or water tank is resting on the drive wheel to compact the soil. The wheel just smooths, firms and ideally prepares the soil providing accurate plant placement, proper depth control, and positive spacings from 6" and up in all soil conditions.

RESEARCH ROUNDUP

Hay And Corn Supplements For Wintering Beef Cows

Two trials recently have shown the value of using corn as an energy source of beef cows during the winter. We often see the circumstance where feed energy in corn may be priced more cheaply than the energy in hay. Since the cow presumably does not care where the energy comes from as long as she gets it, the corn diets may be cheaper.

Ohio workers (Leorch, et al, 1995) reported comparisons of calf productivity and cow condition scores for cows limit-fed corn with hay with cows that had ad libidum access to hay. Cows on corn diets were fed about 10 pounds of corn daily, 2.6 pounds of a protein supplement, and about 3 pounds of hay. Cows on hay only consumed 32 pounds of hay daily.

Their results indicated cows on corn gained more weight, but there was no difference in body condition score of cows or calf weaning weight for the two treatments. Feed costs per day were significantly lower for cows on corn with prices assigned at $2.00 per bushel for corn and $80 per ton for hay ($.77 vs. $1.50 per day for corn-fed and hay-fed, respectively.)

An Illinois study (Tjardes et al, 1995) compared whole and cracked corn with hay diets in a similar study. Their results showed whole corn would be just as effective as cracked corn for cows. There were also no differences in cow body condition scores, calf weaning weights, or subsequent rebreeding rates among the three treatments.

Early Weaning

An Ohio study (Johnson et al, 1995) has shown an advantage in calf gain for early-weaned beef steers. Early weaning is a useful management tool when the price of grain is relatively low, there is a restriction on forage availability for cows nursing calves, or there is a lack of milk production from cows for any reason.

Certain price and weather scenarios would encourage the use of early weaning. For example, a locally dry fall that would inhibit grass growth coupled with low grain prices would encourage weaning calves early, feeding them grain with or without pasture, and using alternative forage sources to maintain weight on cows.

The Ohio researchers found steers weaned early (100 days of age) and placed on feed gained faster and were fatter than calves that remained with their dams until normal weaning time. Heifers that were early weaned and fed a diet which would project 1.75 pounds per gain daily while on pasture until normal weaning dates actually gained 1.62 pounds daily, indicating adequate gains would require more grain than anticipated.

Our work at Penn State last year with early weaned calves showed that these calves have a relatively high energy and protein requirement if they are to grow at a rate similar to calves that remain with the cow. Our results showed that early weaned calves on high quality grass-legume pastures would gain about 1 pound daily less than calves on similar pastures with their dams.

The availability of good pasture and a feed delivery system for early weaned calves can be cost-effective when grain is priced lower and hay or grass for cows is at a premium.

Protein Source For Holstein Steers

We have been studying ways to make Holsteins more economical to feed for a number of years. A current project is investigating the role of pasture as a source of feed for growing Holstein steers and the subsequent effect on feedlot performance and carcass quality. Part of that work is comparing steers that have access to rumen bypass protein while on pasture.

The work done here by Brian House (1991) showed there was an advantage in carcass grade for steers fed bypass protein during the growing phase. Preliminary results in the current pasture study have shown this may again be true.

A study in Illinois (Hussein et. al., 1995) compared soybean meal and soybean meal + urea as protein sources, and compared 4 levels of rumen-protected methionine and lysine (amino acids that are usually limited in grain diets.) Their results indicated there was no difference in feedlot performance or carcass quality among the different protein and amino acid sources.

This implies that diets may formulated to use urea to provide part of the protein requirement, and this will usually be cheaper than when soybean meal provides all of the protein. Secondly, this also implies the advantage we have seen with rumen-bypass proteins in the growing phase on carcass quality may not be due to higher availability of certain amino acids. The reason for the advantage is not yet known.

Cattlemen's Field Day

The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association summer field day will be held at the Maytown Picnic Grounds in Lancaster County on Saturday, June 17.

Everyone is invited to attend.

The program will include tours of three local feedlots that are using some unique management and cost-saving practices. There will also be activities for children and tours of local attractions for those not interested in seeing the feedlots.

It will be a fun day for the whole family, so make plans now to attend. For more information, contact Joan Potter at the PCA office, (814) 692-4208.

Grazing Meetings Set

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.)—Penn State's multicounty extension unit in the Central Susquehanna Valley has scheduled two grazing meetings during early June.

The first meeting will be at the dairy farm of Harry Nolt in Union County on Friday, June 2 from 10 a.m. until noon. The Nolt's have been converting to a pasture-based system over the past few years. Part of the discussion at this pasture walk will focus on supplemental nutrition programs for cattle on pasture.

From Route 15 between Lewisburg and West Milton, take the Col. Kelly Road at Byerly's Meat Market. Go past the prison entrance about a mile and the farm is right along the road on the right side. From Route 192 between Lewisburg and Forest Hill take the Col. Kelly Road for several miles. After the Buffalo Mennonite Church the farm is on the left. Look for a red barn and a large area of pasture beside the barn.

A grazing meeting for livestock producers will be held on Tuesday, June 6 from 7-9 p.m. at Black Run Farm, owned by Pete Gatski and Jean Downing. This is a commercial cow/calf farm with about 25 brood cows. They are developing a market for direct sales of beef. Pasture on the farm is managed on a rotational basis.

From Route 42 between Bloomsburg and Millville, turn on Black Run Road at Stackhouse Well-Drilling and go less than a mile and the farm is on the right side. From Route 44 between Jerseytown and Buckhorn, turn on Black Run Road at the Dutch Hill Church and go about 2.5 miles.

For more information on these meetings, contact Dave Hartman at the Columbia County Extension Office, (717) 784-6660.

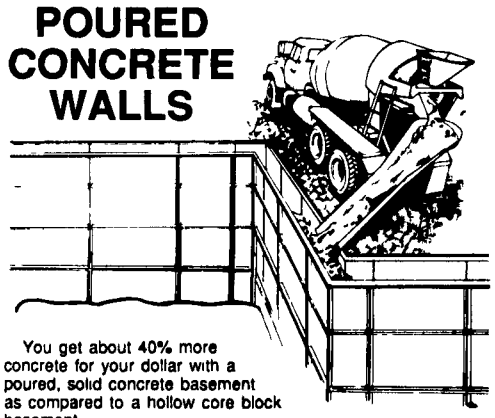
WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

The Susquehanna — What's In It For Me?

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — June is rivers month, a perfect time to take the pulse of the Susquehanna River.

The 444-mile river that starts in New York, cuts through Pennsylvania, and ends up in Maryland to help shape the Chesapeake Bay is an important part of Pennsylvania's life. So, take a moment during June, stand at the banks of the river and enjoy these "reflections."

If you're wondering what's in the river for you, you won't have to work too hard to answer that question. There's something for all of us.

• Fish. It's wide and in some cases, not even knee-deep. But the Susquehanna is willing to give up its secrets. Fishermen come from all over the East Coast to fish the river. Last year, the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission issued 54 congratulatory citations for trophy-size large-mouth and small-mouth bass, walleye, bluegills, striped bass and catfish. Before hydroelectric dams stopped upstream migrations, American shad ran the river, making them the most important species in the early 1800s. In 1993, agreements were signed to remove one stumbling block to that traditional spawning, and at the beginning of the next century, shad will run the river once more. In 1994, a record nearly 33,000 shad were trapped at the Conowingo Dam and trucked to be released up the river for spawning.

• Wildlife. Take your binoculars to the Susquehanna, and you'll be treated to visual delights. For years, bald eagles were absent from the river, victims of the effects of pesticides. Through reintroduction efforts organized by the Pennsylvania Game Commission, our national symbol, which is an endangered species, has returned to several nesting sites in the state. In 1994, several eagles nested successfully in Lancaster, York, and Dauphin counties.

In addition, a wide variety of ducks and geese use the Susquehanna as a travel lane to provide food and resting cover on annual southward migrations. And if you're looking for nature, focus especially on the wetlands, which are home to every level of wildlife — birds, mammals, amphibians, reptiles and wild plants and flowers.

• History. Pennsylvania was built by its rivers. In central Pennsylvania, settlers were attracted to the fertile lands and lush forests along the Susquehanna, and William Penn envisioned a sister-city to Philadelphia on the river, the two linked by a canal between the Susquehanna and the Schuylkill rivers. That never happened, but the wife valley has invited prosperity for its inhabitants. Up and down the river, Pennsylvania's history can be seen in the small towns; in Harrisburg, the seat of the state government; and in the rural landscapes that contnue to produce rich annual harvests.

• Natural Filter. The Susquehanna is a forgiving river. Every day, we use the river to clean our wastes and quench our thirst, and it does both exceedingly well. Unfortunately, the river is subject to contamination by several major categories of pollutants, including nutrients, sediment, toxic chemicals.

• Water Pump. This is the second-largest watershed in the eastern United States, and we pull from it. Every day, the public demands about 200 million gallons of drinking water from the lower Susquehanna River basin. At the same time, the river also delivers a daily average of 25 billion gallons of water flow to the Chesapeake Bay. That's half the bay's fresh water.

If you like the "reflections" in the river, protect these resources, and they'll be ours to enjoy for generations to come. And if you really want to see how this natural ecosystem works, plan to attend the 1995 Susquehanna River Celebration. This one-day festival is free and will be held Saturday, June 10, from noon to 5 p.m. at Riverfront Park in Harrisburg. The event features the music of blues band Rosey and the Naturals, environmental exhibits and educational demonstrations, lots of children's activities, a craft show and demonstrations.

All activities are focused on a single theme — "We All Live Downstream." The celebration is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Bay Education Office, the city of Harrisburg and the local radio station The River 97.3 WRVV. For more information, call the Pennsylvania Bay Education office, (717) 236-1006.

Farm Bureau Welcomes New Employees

GLENMONT, N.Y.—New York Farm Bureau announced the appointment of four new employees to positions that include field advisers and a new program specialist.

David Whitmore, the director of organization for New York Farm Bureau, said, "It is a great pleasure to welcome these individuals to New York Farm Bureau. Each of the four is an outstanding individual who brings new ideas and enthusiasm to his/her respective position. New York Farm Bureau is fortunate to have so many fine people join our staff. We look forward to these individuals' becoming an integral part of our many successes, both in the field and in the home office."

The four new employees are:

•A graduate of SUNY Brockport and Cobleskill, Marie Krenzer is serving as a field adviser for Genesee, Livingston, Monroe, Orleans, and Wyoming counties. Krenzer, a Monroe County resident, has been very active in Farm Bureau in the past, serving as the Young Farmer Conference chairwoman and vice president of the Monroe County Farm Bureau board of directors. Formerly, Krenzer served as office manager for the family farm and possesses a broad range of experience in the agricultural industry as well as a background in accounting. Marie lives in Scottsville with her husband, David, and son, Benjamin.

•Holding master's and bachelor's degrees from the University of Wisconsin-Stout, Linda Lamb has joined New York Farm Bureau as a program specialist responsible for the Young Farmers programs, the women's program, the Ag is The Classroom program, the promotion and education program, and a portion of the membership program. A former employee of Massachusetts Farm Bureau where she was the director of member relations, Lamb brings 13 years of Farm Bureau experience to her position. Lamb lives in Northborough, Mass., with her husband, Larry, and two stepchildren, Scott and Chrissy.

•A Class IV graduate of Cornell's Lead-N.Y. Food and Agricultural Leadership Program and SUNY Morrisville, Bradd Vickers is serving as field adviser for Broome, Chemung, Chenango, Schulyer, Tioga and Tompkins counties. Vickers, a beef farm operator, has been an active Farm Bureau member and brings a wealth of agricultural experience to his position. He lives in Norwich with his wife, Rainy.

•A graduate of SUNY Cobleskill and Cornell University, Judi Feagles is serving as new field adviser responsible for Clinton, Essex, Rensselaer, Saratoga, and Washington counties. A former herd office manager/parlor manager for a dairy farm in Herkimer County, Feagles was raised on a family farm in Port Plain and has extensive professional experience in agribusiness and production agriculture. She resides in Fort Plain.

Polled Hereford Association Holds Show, Sale

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — The 41st annual spring show and sale of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Association was held at the Mercer 4-H Park on April 29.

The show was at 2 p.m. with Pete LeVan of Penn State as the judge. The sale began at 7 p.m. with Lloyd and Don Braham of Grove City as the auctioneer and Lou Ellen Herr of Big T Ranch of Jeromesville, Ohio as pedigree announcer.

The 23 lots (females and bulls) totaled $16,905 for an average of $735/head. There were 17 females totaling $12,080 for an average of $710.59/head. The six bulls totaled $4,825 for an average of $804/head.

The grand champion bull, a February 1994 son of HF SKYWAY 08N S18A, consigned by Cody Filgers, Butler, sold to Hans C. Piepenhagen, Mercer, for $1,000. Reserve grand champion bull was shown by Bar H Farm, Sewickley. Top selling bull was consigned by Brown Haven Farm, New Castle. A February 1993 son of Anhinga Vic 69R834 sold to Charles Button, Tioga, for $1,275.

The grand champion heifer was shown by Tellish Hereford Farm of Hookstown. She is the February 1994 daughter of PKF Ammunition 3A and sold to Samuel C. Hunter of Smithsburg, Md., for $700. Hunter was also volume buyer with the purchase of five lots. Reserve champion heifer was shown by Brown Haven Farm of New Castle, which was a March 1994 heifer out of RPF Victor 801.

Grand champion 2-year-old female was shown by Frank Granberry III of Zelienople. A March 1993 daughter of JCD NV Ascendant Y26 with a March bull calf at side out of RHF Victor 767 sold to Lyn-Jon Acres of Midland, for $1,150. She was also the highest selling female. Reserve grand champion 2-year-old female was shown by John Vidovich III of Midland. She is a September 1993 daughter of PS Prescedent 902 and sold to Lori Preston, Greenville, for $900.

Portable Take-Off Integrates Functions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — MilkMaster™, the world's first totally integrated portable take-off unit, has recently been introduced by Alfa Laval Agri Inc.

It was designed to help stanchion dairy farmers maximize their potential milk harvest; milk faster, with less labor and greater control; and take better care of their cows.

MilkMaster features various milking functions, including milk yield indication, patented automatic cluster removal (ACR), pulsation control, milk flow indication, and milking time indication. It can be programmed with a large number of delay settings and for different flow-rate thresholds, making it adaptable to different breeds and a variety of herd conditions.

The unit starts with low vacuum and slow pulsation with an inverted ratio. This means the massage phase is 70 percent and the milking phase is 30 percent. This efficient new milking method — referred to as Soft Stimulation™ — treats the cows gently during the pre-milking phase to encourage let-down and maximize potenual milk harvest.

MilkMaster's electronic milk flow indicator senses the milk flow and the microprocessor controls the transition from Soft Stimulation in the pre-milking pnase to the main milking phase. The microprocessor also calculates and displays the milk flow, milking time, and indicates the milk yield of each cow at each milking — information that can signal possible illness or heat as well as help the operator optimize feed rations or gauge the effectiveness of correct milking routines.

According to Alfa Laval Agri Marketing Manager Mark Hart, MilkMaster was designed with both cows and operators in mind.

"With most milking systems, the cows are forced to adapt to the machine," said Hart. "Because it's controlled by milk flow, MilkMaster treats each cow according to her individual needs to maximize her milking potential and keep her healthy.

MilkMaster™ portable take-off unit was designed to help stanchion dairy farmers maximize their potential milk harvest; milk faster, with less labor and greater control; and take better care of their cows.

"We also focused on operator comfort when designing MilkMaster," Hart said. "The carrying handle which allows easy two-handed lifting and hanging is just one example. MilkMaster can even be combined with Easy Line — a system from Alfa Laval Agri that suspends all milking equipment from a track — to eliminate carrying altogether."

Labeling On Ivomec Premix For Swine FDA Registered

WHITEHOUSE STATION, N.J. — Pork producers using Ivomec® (ivermectin) premix for swine as their source of parasite protection no longer will be limited by date restrictions on the Type B medicated feed label. In addition, dealers can relabel and sell existing inventories with no expiration date.

The Food and Drug Administration recently confirmed the elimination of the need for an expiration date for Ivomec Premix Type B Medicated Feeds containing Ivomec Premix for Swine 0.6% Type A Medicated Article. In addition, existing inventories of Type B Medicated Feeds are relieved of dating restrictions.

"One of the biggest benefits to producers is the confirmation that it is not necessary to track expiration dates of Ivomec Premix Type B feeds," said David Bent, product manager, swine products, U.S. operations. "This will give producers more time to manage other important aspects of their inventories and operations."

Designed to provide broad-spectrum internal and external parasite control for swine, Ivomec Premix can be fed to growing and finishing pigs up to 220 pounds. Internally, Ivomec Premix controls six species of adult worms and four species of immature worms. It is the only feed-grade product that controls mange mites and lice in swine.

Herbicide Provides Effective Weed Control

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Tough weeds such as velvetleaf, ragweed, and cocklebur have a formidable and long-lasting new enemy — Exceed™, a post-emergence corn herbicide from Ciba Crop Protection. The herbicide was recently registered by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Exceed combines excellent control of tough broadleaf weeds, a wide application window, good residual benefits, and crop safety.

Exceed works systemically to control triazine-resistant and other problem weeds including velvetleaf, cocklebur, pigweed, lambsquarters, ragweed, kochia, sunflower, morningglory and more. Exceed isn't volatile, so it stays where it's applied and won't affect neighboring crops. The herbicide binds to the soil to provide up to four weeks of residual control.

McGee Elected Select Sires President

PLAIN CITY, Ohio—The Select Sires board of directors, consisting of directors from the 11-member co-ops, elected William H. McGee as its new president at Select's 1995 annual meeting. McGee replaces Bill Genasci, All West/Select Sires, at the helm of the industry's largest A.I. cooperative.

"My goal as president will be to continue the example of leadership provided by past presidents," said McGee. "This leadership has been very important to the success of Select Sires."

McGee, a farmer-director representing Midsouth/Select Sires, hails from Starkville, Miss., where he and his son, David, own and operate Mactoc Farm. This registered Holstein herd, established in 1967, consists of a 210-cow milking herd with a RHA of more than 27,000 pounds of milk with a 3.7% fat and 3.3% protein on 2X milking. In addition to managing his own herd, McGee is an active dairy management consultant.

Retired from Mississippi State University (MSU) after 30 years of service, McGee held various positions during his tenure. They included herdsman, associate professor, professor and instructor for classes on dairy herd management systems and dairy cattle appraisal. McGee also served as the management coordinator of the dairy experiment stations in the state.

Quality Milk Tops Benefit List Of Wash Controller

MADISON, Wis.—Consumers and dairy producers alike will reap the benefits of the newly introduced Bou-Matic Guardian II wash controller, according to Julie Ziese, product manager.

"This product makes a positive contribution to quality milk production and the success of the producer's dairy operation," she said. "For the producer, the threat of losing milk premiums and Grade A status is all the more reason to find a dependable sanitation program."

The Guardian II offers safeguard sanitation coupled with an effortless labor routine. Designed as a clean-in-place pipeline washer, the Guardian II combines the actions of an efficient wash controller with the security of an internal monitoring system.

This sytem can be used in dairies of various sizes. Developed to include custom circulation times, temperature settings and other adjustable features, the Guardian II also features automatic chemical dispensing.

Equipped with diverting options for all phases of the wash cylce, this wash controller can divert milky water or be adjusted to add fresh water to completely rinse the milk line.

The Guardian II provides a complete and quality wash after each milking shift and sanitizes your system before the next use.

Testing Lab Relocates, Adds New Tests

MANCHESTER, Md. — Myers Analytical Laboratories Inc., MAL Inc., has moved to its new location at 2911 Southwestern Ave., Manchester, Md.

Certified in wet chemistry analysis by the National Forage Testing Association, MAL specializes in agricultural analyses. These include analysis of feeds, forages, TMRs, commodities, soil, water, and manure. All analyses are performed by MAL Inc.'s specially trained analysts.

MAL Inc. has also added several new analyses to its already extensive battery of tests. The lab is now offering a heat treated soybean analyses package which includes moisture, DM, crude protein, urease activity (pH unit rise), and a protein dispensability index.

Urease activity is an indicator of how thoroughly and uniformly the bean has been processed. Since urease is very heat sensitive, failure to heat the bean enough to penetrate its center will reflect in a rise in urease activity.

Protein Dispensability Index (PDI) is a measurement of the soluable protein in heat-treated beans. Through trials comparing the available lysine and post ruminal available lysine, the USDA Forage Research Center has determined the optimum range for PDI, MAL, Inc. graphs PDI results on a PDI table.

MAL Inc. can now also test corn for fumonisim. Fumonisin is a mycotoxin that is considered to be ubiquitous in corn. Recent outbreaks in the Unitd States have included Arizona, Indiana, Kentucky (18 horses died between December 1994 and January 1995) North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, and Virginia (19 horses died between October 1994 and February 1995). MAL Inc. can also perform mycotoxin tests to detect aflatoxin, zearalenone, vomitoxin, and T-2 toxin.

Nepera Appoints Business Director

HARRIMAN, N.Y. — Roger H. Noack, president of Nepera, Inc., announced the appointment of David S. Walton as business director of Niacinamide.

Walton will be responsible for the growth, proftability, and strategic direction of Nepera's Vitamin B-3, Beta Picoline, and 3-Cyanopyridine businesses.

Vitamin B-3 (Niacinamide) is a key essential vitamin in human food, vitamin supplements, and animal feeds. Beta Picoline and 3-Cyanopyridine are key ingredients in pharmaceuticals and agricultural products.

Walton was strategic marketing leader for seven years in the soil insecticide business at Zeneca Agricultural Products. Prior to Zeneca, he was marketing manager for nine years at American Cyanamid Agricultural Products in Wayne, N.J.

Walton has received a bachelor's in chemical engineering from Penn State, a master's from the Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania, and is completing qualifications as a certified financial planner.

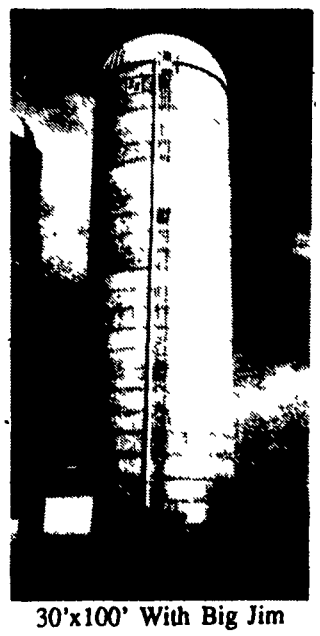
"THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING FEED STORAGE"



30'x100' With Big Jim Drive Thru

"The Big Jim is doing a fine job bringing the feed down. We really believe the drive-thru, Big Jim System is worth anyone's consideration. It is costing more every year to grow forages and we feel our minimal quality and quantity losses are easily paying for the additional initial cost of this investment compared to that of a bunker. We are throwing no feed away and the cows are milking the best they ever have." (over 90 lbs. per cow.)

Signed/Atwater Farms
Rick Atwater

Drive your truck or mixer-wagon under the 12' high floor for fast and efficient delivery of your wilted hay or silage. Eliminate conveyors from silos to mixer.

INDUSTRIAL PAINT

We have just received thousands of gallons of the highest quality, industrial grade paints as a result of military base closings and cancelled government contracts. These paints were made to comply with strict Federal specifications by manufacturers who supply the industrial market. They were designed for extreme duty in military service, making them far exceed typical applications in commercial or farm use. We have a limited amount of each of the types listed below. Buy now while we have it available-most can be stored for several more years.

| Types available | Description | Colors | Price |
|---|---|---|---|
| Polyurethane | 2 part-top coat weather-impact resistant wood-steel-concrete | grays-brown red-blue-black tan-green | $12/gal |
| Polyurethane | 1 part-topcoat impact-weather resistant wood-steel-concrete | black-brown green | $10/gal |
| Epoxy | 2 part-flat use on galvanized metal-wood-concrete | light gray | $12/gal |
| Epoxy | 2 part semi-gloss use as primer or top-coat on metal-concrete-wood | light gray | $14/gal. |
| Epoxy | 2 part-flat | orange | $12/gal. |
| Epoxy | 2 part | white | $14/gal |

Side with Alumax ALU-TUFF Steel

When you put up a building, you expect it to be attractive and to last. A building constructed with ALU-TUFF will meet those expectations. That's because ALU-TUFF is made using top-quality materials, super-tough protective coatings, and a unique rib design that's both functional and attractive.

Years from now when other buildings are starting to show their age, your building will still look good.

- A STRONG PROFILE
  High 3/4-inch ribs on nine-inch centers give ALU-TUFF exceptionally high spanning properties for its weight and thickness, while stiffening ribs in flat areas prevent rippling.
- MADE TO LAST
  To keep Alu-Tuff working hard and looking good for years to come, we protect it with an oven-cured system of four different coatings.
- A GREAT LOOKING PANEL
  You don't have to sacrifice good looks to get a tough steel panel.
- MORE QUALITY FEATURES
  Each ALU-TUFF sheet is 38 inches wide to provide 36-inch coverage. That's wide enough to minimize the number of side laps, yet narrow enough to be easy to handle.

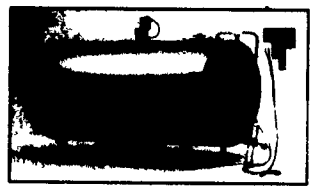
RUFUS BRUBAKER REFRIGERATION

And...

MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs are only one of the costs of a cooling mill

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

| Example | Mueller | Competition |
|---|---|---|
| Cost of equipment | $31,000 | $28,000 |
| Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years | $17,550 | $22,850 |
| Total operating cost for ten years | $48,550 | $50,850 |
| Savings | $ 2,300 | |

HOSTETTER GRAIN

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels.
- Improved energy density of your rations.
- Excellent quality control.
- Exchange programs with feed mills.
- Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- We also buy corn and soybeans

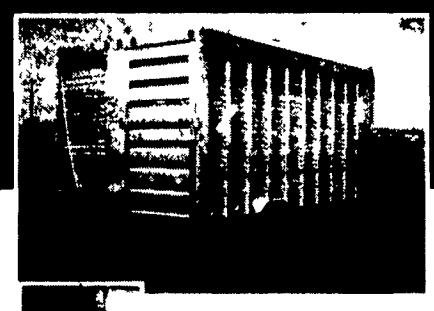
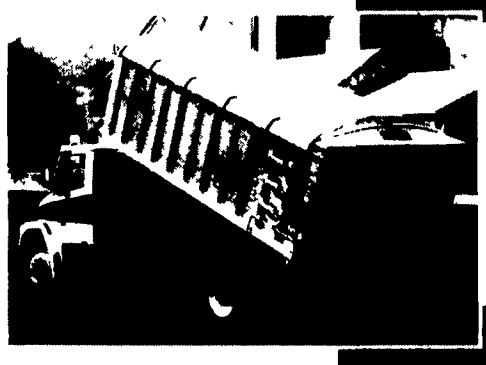
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies

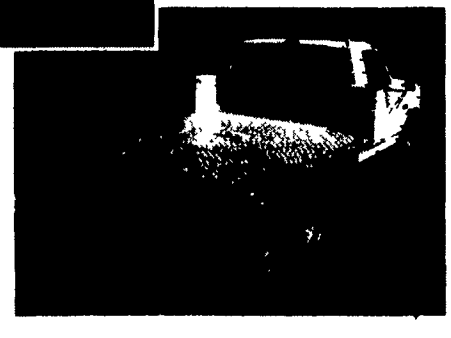


M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:
- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.



Let EBY custom build one for you.



Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

The Model 7712 can be set-up as a Front 3 Point Mounted Push-Type Cultivator or a Rear 3-Point Mounted Pull-Type Cultivator!

Rugged Danish tines loosen, mix and aerate the soil while digging up moisture-robbing weeds. The special tempered steel vibrates side to side, producing aggressive working action.

REMEMBER THE 3 LAWS OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES...

LAW #1- (17) Years Old is not equal to (≠) WORN OUT...
Because of the simple design of the CASE IH Axial Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by HOOBER'S expert combine mechanics to like-new condition, so they provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.

LAW #2- (4,000) HOURS PLUS (+) HOOBER RECONDITIONING EQUALS (=) YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE...
(4,000) Hours on a conventional combine usually means they'll be too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow combines with (4,000) hours, reconditioned by HOOBER'S, have proven to run for years when purchased by farmers in PA, MD, DE and NJ

LAW #3- A CASE IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SERVICED BY EXPERT HOOBER COMBINE MECHANICS EQUALS (=) LITTLE OR NO DOWNTIME DURING HARVEST...
When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service and repair AXIAL-FLOW combines in the off-season, they run dependably through the season.

FINALLY...

YOU'RE IN CONTROL

The Model 900 forage harvester puts you in control of your harvest:

- Rugged 21-inch, 12-knife cutterhead for a uniform chop.
- Exclusive flip-up feedrolls provide convenient access to the shearbar and smooth roll scraper.
- Electromagnetic clutches provide instant response in controlling feedroll and attachment drives.
- Optional Metalert® 11 metal detector protects cutterhead and your valuable animals.

REACH FOR THE SKY!

MAKE SHORT WORK OF TALL SILOS

The Model 60 is a big-capacity 540-rpm forage blower built to center-fill silos up to 100' tall. It features a 37" diameter feed hopper that makes positioning and unloading with cross conveyers easy.

A large 12" feed auger moves crop to the fan for maximum blowing efficiency. And, the 60" diameter blower fan is straddle-mounted for years of tough dependable performance. The Model 60 forage blower also features:

- Eight adjustable, replaceable paddles
- Heavy-duty, shearbolt protected PTO
- Adjustable shearbar
- Reversible blower band
- Adjustable air gate
- 9' telescoping pipe
- Adjustable wheels

NEW HOLLAND

So reach for the sky with the new Model 60 forage blower. Stop in today and we'll show you how to make short work of tall silos.

CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

Discover CLAAS
THE HARVESTING SPECIALIST

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Call now to see how you can improve the round figures on your bottom line.

CLAAS
Thorough hard work

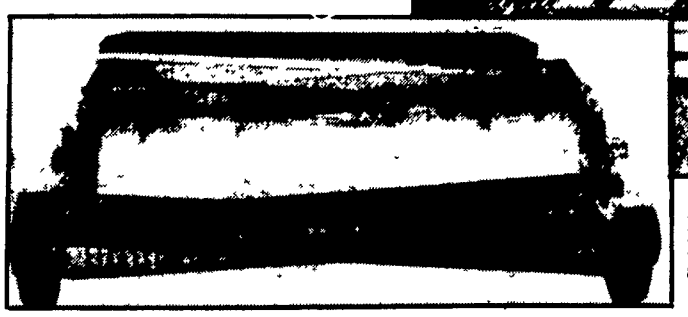
Grass silage is top quality and high energy forage. The CLAAS pickup makes sure that it is clean and none of it is left on the field. Its high power design is characterized by the cranked spring steel tines, the roller crop press and the intake auger with its high auger flights to transport a smooth crop flow to the machine. The CLAAS Contour system keeps the pickup floating over the ground, minimizing wear and tear on it.

The pickup follows ground contours by means of adjustable support wheels, enhancing a clean, thorough harvest.



Bumps and ground irregularities leave the CLAAS pickup unimpressed. It is flexiable and hugs the ground. It copmpensates in travel direction and laterally, being both spring balanced and flexibly mounted.

MF Dynashift™ transmissions get top reviews.

Your left hand controls a 4-speed powershift transmission for smooth, clutchless shifts under load and outstanding productivity.

On the other hand, it's an efficient, reliable manual transmission.

Your right hand controls an 8-speed synchronized transmission with synchronized forward/reverse shuttle.

MASSEY FERGUSON

Together you get a tractor with 32 forward and 32 reverse speeds that's more productive than a manual shift and more economical and reliable than a powershift. Test drive a Dynashift transmission today on one of these outstanding MF tractors:

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR PARTS DEPT.

John Deere Signature PARTS

Recently, John Deere Company presented our dealership's parts department with the John Deere Signature Award.

To achieve this award, our parts department had to meet stringent criteria in several areas, including CUSTOMER SATISFACTION.

Only a small number of John Deere dealerships achieve this award. Stop in soon and see why our parts department is worthy of John Deere Signature status.

Managing Forage Quality For Dairy Cows

Growing and harvesting high quality forages is both an art and a science, with a little bit of good luck thrown in.

Weather and soil type are dictated to us, but we can manage seed varieties, maturity at harvest, and silo/bunker conditions. How forages are fed to cows is also under our control. Some areas requiring attention are:

* Corn silage variety - some seed companies are continually evaluating digestibility of their varieties. this can help producers better select which variety of corn to plant to maximize animal performance. Ask for digestibility information when selecting seed.

* Stage of maturity at chopping - immature forages have higher digestibility than mature forages. corn silage will have highest digestibility when cut BEFORE kernels get hard and dry (chop corn silage BEFORE formation of the black layer). It is better to have some seepage from the silo than to have corn kernels passing through the animal undigested.

* Bunker silo management - cover silage with plastic and weigh down tires to prevent air infiltration. Manage the face (surface) of the silage mass - if it is well packed, silage can be scrapped off the face, with minimal silage falling to the ground, piling up and spoiling.

* Innoculants - addition of lactic acid bacteria to silage can speed the rate of acid production during the initial stages of fermentation. Silage quality will subsequently be improved. Ask your Purina Dealer for information on Purina Mills MAXI-SIL SILAGE INNOCULANT
